Healthy Way of Life

Words to learn:

- kebab,
- to enjoy,
- to enjoy oneself,
- to excite,
- excited,
- to roller skate,
- roller skates,
- roller skating.

1. Listen, read and think of your own poem. Say if summer is your favourite season.

Summer has begun
 And brought a lot of joy and fun
 No lessons to be done
 Just the rest and sun.

2. Look at the pictures and say how these people are feeling and what they are doing to stay cheerful and healthy.

These expressions can help you:

- to enjoy every minute/moment of something
- to like doing something
- to fish
- to be excited about
- to be in a good mood
- to be cheerful
- to learn roller skating
- to do kebab
- to take part in different activities
- to do sports

3. Say what else you can do to feel healthy and cheerful.

4. Complete the mind map.

5. Listen, read the words and their definitions and make some sentences with these words. Learn these words and their definitions.

- 1. kebab [kɪ'bæb] noun a food consisting of small pieces of meat and vegetables cooked on a stick
- 2. roller skate ['rɒləskeɪt] noun a boot with small wheels on the bottom used for moving quickly along, especially for fun or as a sport

- | | |
|--|--|
| 3. cheerful ['tʃiəfl] adj | making you feel happy because of being pleasant or enjoyable |
| 4. scuba diving ['sku:bə daɪvɪŋ] noun | the activity of swimming under water with a container of air on your back and a tube for breathing through |
| 5. mountain climbing ['maʊntɪn 'klaɪmɪŋ] noun | the activity of climbing the side of a mountain or large rock for enjoyment, usually using ropes and other equipment |

| 9. to take pictures [teɪk 'pɪktʃəz] verb | to take a photograph of sb/sth |

Vocabulary Practice

6. Group the sports in the list under the heading: water sports/indoor sports/outdoor sports. Which of these sports can you see in the pictures? Which is your favourite?

hunting, kayaking, acrobatics, judo, badminton, golf, figure skating, football, boxing, baseball, basketball, dog racing, fishing, cycling, skiing, rugby, tennis, mountain climbing, karate, running, swimming, jogging

Sports — play, do or go?

We use the verbs play, do and go with sports and activities. Here is the information you need to know to use them correctly.

play

Play is used with ball sports or competitive games where we play against another person.

«How often do you play tennis?» — tennis is a ball sport.

«I play chess with my friends after classes on Friday.» — chess is a competitive game. We play to win.

«I don't like playing computer games.» — again, computer games are competitive so we use play.

do

Do is used for a recreational activity or a non-team sport that does not use a ball.

«I've heard that you do karate.» — karate is a non-team activity.

«I do crossword puzzles in my free time.» — crossword puzzles are not competitive.

go + sport

Go is used with activities that end in -ing.

I go jogging every morning.

Mary goes swimming after work.

If the weather is good, I go climbing with Gerry once a month.

Fred likes going sailing.

7. Write what kinds of sport we use with these verbs: go, do, play.

GO	Skiing,
DO	Yoga,
PLAY	Tennis,

Spot on Comparing Things

Ways of Comparing Things

We use «as ... as ...» to compare people or things that are similar in some way or «not so ... as ...», «not as ... as ...» when they are not similar and in order to express smaller quality.

You are as kind as your mother.

You are not so kind as your mother.

She was as old as her husband.

She was not so old as I thought.

His homework was done not as badly as I expected.

His homework was done not so badly as I expected.

The words «almost», «quite» can be used before «as ... as ...» in the meaning «майже як», «такий самий».

He is almost as clever as his father.

When we want an adjective to sound stronger, we use these words: rather, a little, a bit, a lot, much, even (набагато, значно, дещо).

This kind of sport is rather more difficult.

This book is a bit more expensive.

Instead of using «not so ... as ...», we can use «not such a ... as ...».

He is not such a good sportsman as my brother.

In order to express smaller quality «less ... than ...» in the meaning «менше ніж» is used which means the same as «not as ... as ...».

My task is less important than yours.

8. Complete the sentences using as ... as, not so ... as/not as ... as.

Example: June is not so hot as July.

1. December was ... cold ... January last year.
2. The bus was ... crowded ... ever.
3. You are ... good at karate ... your father.
4. She is not ... good at swimming ... her mother.
5. He is not ... hard-working ... his friend.
6. You are ... kind ... your father.
7. I am almost ... good at English ... my classmates.
8. My composition is not ... long ... yours.
9. It isn't ... warm today ... it was yesterday.
10. The house his aunt lives in is ... old ... the one his uncle lives in.
11. Johnny isn't ... rich ... Don but he is younger and much happier.

- 12. My dog isn't ... friendly ... your dog.
- 13. You can eat ... much ... you like.
- 14. A football match isn't ... exciting ... a hockey match.

9. Read the sentences, find the mistakes and correct them.

Example: She ~~are~~ not such a good sportswoman as her friend.
She is not such a good sportswoman as her friend.

- 1. His task is not so important than mine.
- 2. They is as good at English as their classmates.
- 3. I am not so good at English so my teacher.
- 4. My conclusions is less important than yours.
- 5. His result in testing was not so bad as they expected.
- 6. I is as tall as my brother.
- 7. The hotel aren't as cheap as we expected.
- 8. Her brother is as more intelligent as she is.
- 9. She felt as strongest as her brother.
- 10. He is as tired like you after playing basketball.
- 11. He were not so active as his classmates.
- 12. She is not so busy as I is.
- 13. She is not so fond of sports as my brother is.
- 14. It is as cold today as it were yesterday.

Listening

10. Listen to the conversation and mark the statements T (true) or F (false).

- 1. Paul is an instructor in a holiday camp.
- 2. Mike likes cycling, baseball and mountain climbing.
- 3. Mike wants to try his hand at scuba diving and boxing.
- 4. Carmen wants to try her hand at cycling.
- 5. Carmen is the new instructor.

11. Listen again, read and put ticks (✓) or crosses (×) in the table.

	cycling		scuba diving		boxing		mountain climbing
	yes	enjoyed	yes	enjoyed	yes	enjoyed	yes	enjoyed
Mike	✓	✓
Carmen

Speaking

12. Speak about these people. What kinds of sport are they dreaming about? Try to guess.

Dealing with the Discussion.

- Read the questions.
- Take short notes of your answer.
- Share your opinion with your partner or the class.

13. Work in a group of 3. Discuss the questions and complete the table.

6. Look at the USDA's MyPlate. Give your opinion on what it is.

Listening

7. Listen to the text and fill in the missing words. These words can help you: sugar, group, healthy, protein, dairy.

MyPlate illustrates the five food groups: Grains, Vegetables, Fruits, Dairy and Protein Foods. They are the building blocks for a healthy⁽¹⁾ diet using a familiar image — a place setting for a meal. The bigger the portion of the plate is, the more foods from that food _____⁽²⁾ should be in people's diet.

MyPlate is divided into sections of approximately 30 % grains, 40 % vegetables, 10 % fruits and 20 % _____⁽³⁾, accompanied by a smaller circle representing dairy, such as a glass of milk or a yogurt cup.

MyPlate is supplemented with additional recommendations, such as «Make half of your plate fruits and vegetables», «Switch to 1 % or skim milk», «Make at least half of your grains whole», and «Vary your protein food choices». The guidelines also recommend portion control while still enjoying food, as well as reductions in sodium and _____⁽⁴⁾ intakes.

In unveiling MyPlate, First Lady Michelle Obama said, «Parents don't have the time to measure out exactly three ounces of chicken or to look up how much rice or broccoli is in a serving. But we do have time to take a look at our kids' plates. And as long as they're eating proper portions, as long as half of their meal is fruits and vegetables alongside their lean proteins, whole grains and low-fat _____⁽⁵⁾, then we're good. It's as simple as that».

Before you eat, think about what is on your plate, in your cup, in your bowl.

8. Read the text and answer the questions.

Food is very important for our lives. It gives us energy for growth, mental and physical work. Some food may be very popular in one part of the world and may not be eaten in the others. Eating habits vary in different countries. The usual meals are breakfast, lunch, dinner and supper.

Our food has six important components: carbohydrates, vitamins, minerals, water, proteins and fibre.

Carbohydrates give us energy. They are in bread, rice, potatoes and pasta. Vitamins are important for our eyes, skin, bones, and hair. They are in many types of food, fruit, and vegetables.

Minerals make our bones and teeth strong. They are in milk, vegetables, fruit, eggs, meat, cereals, and other food.

Water is important for our blood. It cleans our body from the inside.

Protein helps us grow and gives us energy. It is in meat, fish, milk and sugar.

Fibre cleans our body from the inside. It is in nuts, beans and cereals.

1. Why is food important for us?
2. What components does our food have?
3. What foods are carbohydrates in? What do they give us?
4. What foods are vitamins in? What parts of our body are they important for?
5. What do minerals do for us? What foods are they in?
6. What foods is protein in? What is protein for us?

7. What cleans our body from the inside?
8. What foods is fibre in?

9. Work in class. Play the game «A Is for Apple».

In this game, list on a sheet of paper as many healthy foods as possible by initial letter. In 30 seconds, the teacher calls, «Change!» Exchange your piece of paper for another letter, read the foods written on the list, and then add to the list some more.

10. Read a nutritionist's advice. Do you follow it?

10 Tips to a Great Plate

1. Balance calories. Find out how many calories you need for a day as one of the first steps in managing your weight. Find your calorie level. Being physically active also helps you balance calories.

2. Enjoy your food, but eat less. Take the time to fully enjoy your food as you eat it. Eating too fast or when your attention is elsewhere may lead to eating too many calories.

3. Avoid oversized portions. Use a smaller plate, bowl, and glass. When eating out, choose a smaller-size option, share a dish, or take home part of your meal.

4. Foods to eat more often. Eat more vegetables, fruits, whole grains, and fat-free or 1 % milk and dairy products. These foods have the nutrients you need for health — including potassium, calcium, vitamin D, and fibre. Make them the basis for meals and snacks.

5. Make half of your plate fruits and vegetables. Choose red, orange, and dark green vegetables like tomatoes, sweet potatoes, and broccoli, along with other vegetables for your meals. Add fruit to meals as part of main or side dishes or as a dessert.

6. Switch to fat-free or low-fat (1 %) dairy. They have the same amount of calcium and other essential nutrients as whole milk, but fewer calories and less saturated fat.

7. Make half of your grains whole grains. To eat more whole grains, substitute a whole-grain product for a refined product — such as eating wholewheat bread instead of white bread or brown rice instead of white rice.

8. Foods to eat less often. Cut back on foods high in solid fats, added sugars, and salt. They include cakes, cookies, ice cream, candies, sweetened drinks, pizza, and fatty meats like sausages, bacon, and hot dogs. Use these foods as occasional treats, not everyday foods.

9. Compare sodium in foods. Use the Nutrition Facts label to choose lower-sodium versions of foods like soup, bread, and frozen meals. Select canned foods labelled «low sodium», «reduced sodium», or «no salt added».

10. Drink water instead of sugary drinks. Cut calories by drinking water or unsweetened beverages. Soda, energy drinks, and sports drinks are a major source of added sugar, and calories.

11. Work in a group of 3. Make your own list of 10 Tips to a Great Plate (see Ex. 10).

Use these expressions to help you:

balance calories; enjoy your food, but eat less; avoid oversized portions; foods to eat more often; make half of your plate fruits and vegetables; switch to fat-free or low-fat (1 %) milk; make half of your grains whole grains; foods to eat less often; compare sodium in foods; drink water instead of sugary drinks.

Speaking

12. Work in class. Discuss what foods are really healthy.

e.g. Is lasagne healthy? Yes, it contains meat that provides a human body with energy.

13. Work individually. List everything you ate and drank for dinner last night (including snacks and beverages after dinner). Say if you eat healthy food or junk food.

14. Work in pairs.

a Mark each item on your dinner list with the name of the food group(s) represented by the food. Some foods represent more than one group.

e.g. Lasagne has items from the Protein, Dairy, Grain, and Vegetable groups.

Junk foods, such as soda water, candy, and other desserts can be classified as «extras».

- b Compare your marked dinner lists to the Plate recommendations (see Ex. 7). Discuss with the partner if your dinner contained foods from each food group.
- c Give a short feedback whether your partner is following a balanced diet (containing foods from all the useful groups).

Listening

15. Listen to a Fashion Expert about Body Image. Read the sentences and mark them T (true) or F (false).

- 1. Advertising influences healthy lifestyle.
- 2. Ads often irritate people.
- 3. McDonald's and Skittles' ads contribute to healthy lifestyle.
- 4. The height may be changed.
- 5. Images presented by mass media may make people feel dissatisfied.

REMEMBER!

- Eat less salt, sugar and saturated fat.
- Eat more raw fruit and vegetables, limit bread and other foods rich in fibre.
- If you want to lose weight, do it gradually. People who lose weight quickly usually put it back on quickly, too.
- Eat regularly — your body needs a steady flow of energy.
- Drink five or six glasses of water per day.
- Get plenty of variety in your diet.
- Check the «Contents» labels on packets and tins to see what they actually contain.

16. Work in a group of 3.

Create an advertisement completed with your own slogan, song, or poem to promote a healthy food and/or healthy living choices for the «Be Your Best You» campaign.

Follow these tips.

A good slogan should:

- make the audience desire the product;
- be delivered in a clever or attractive way that grabs attention;
- be difficult to forget.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES GROUP

Fruits/Vegetables — help you have healthy gums, good eyesight by providing Vitamins A and C.

Any vitamin or mineral improves nutritive value of foods.

MILK GROUP

Dairy — builds teeth and bones by providing calcium.

Cheese

Milk

Ice cream

Dealing with the Project Work.

- Divide into groups.
- Think of the design of: a poster, a brochure, a leaflet, a letter.
- Think of the materials you need: paper, pencils, crayons, scissors.
- Take some pictures to make the poster brighter and attractive.
- Think up tasks and distribute them.
- Unite the details and present your project to the class.

Types of Project Work

1. Information and research projects which include such kinds of work as reports, displays, etc.
2. Survey projects which may also include displays, but with more interviews, summaries, findings.
3. Production projects which suggest work with radio, television, video, wall newspapers.
4. Performance/Organisational projects which are connected with parties, plays, drama, concerts, etc.

Speaking

17. Work in class.

Share your ad campaigns with the class. After each group has shared its slogan with the class, discuss in a group which foods you would like to eat most, based on various slogans.

- a. How did different groups promote their food and make other pupils want to eat it?
- b. Why are healthy media messages important?
- c. How will you try to influence others to make healthy choices?

Characteristics of Project Work

A project is a piece of work on a particular topic where the content and the presentation are determined principally by the learners. The teacher or the textbook provides the topic, but the project writers themselves decide what they write and how they present it.

The projects are very creative in terms of both content and language. Each project is a unique piece of communication, created by the project writers themselves. In project work, students work together to achieve a common purpose, a concrete outcome (e.g., a brochure, a written report, a bulletin board display, a video, an article for a school newspaper, etc.). But students are not just producing words, they are:

- collecting information;
- drawing pictures, maps, diagrams, and charts;
- cutting out pictures;
- arranging texts and visuals;
- colouring;
- carrying out interviews and surveys;
- possibly making recordings, too.

Lastly, project work gives a clear sense of achievement.

Question Types

Researchers use three basic types of questions: multiple choice, numeric open end and text open end (sometimes called «verbatim»). Examples of each kind of question follow:

Multiple Choice

1. Where do you live?

In the North.

In the East.

In the South.

In the West.

Numeric Open End

2. How much did you spend on groceries this week?

Text Open End

3. How can our company improve working conditions?

Data Analysis

The final stage of the school survey project involves the analysis of the data and creation of a representative display. The information is organised into a graph or chart to answer the original question.

For proper data analysis, separate the answers from each question to form a total for each. For example, make a list of all the responses for question one, then a list of all the responses for question number 2.

Make sure your purpose is clearly stated and presented in a logical way. Surveys can be very interesting and revealing. Have fun with your project!

18. Work in groups. Read the results of the survey above and make your own survey.

You are what you eat Research Questions

Question 1: If you want to become slim, is it better to eat small snacks of food frequently during the day or eat big portions, but seldom?

- 1) To eat small snacks, but frequently.
- 2) To eat big portions, but seldom.
- 3) To eat as much as you can, but to do sport.

Question 2: Is it easier to be a vegetarian or a non-vegetarian?

- 1) It is easier to be a vegetarian.
- 2) It is easier to be a non-vegetarian.

The Canterville Ghost

CHAPTER I

When Mr Hiram B. Otis, the American Minister, bought Canterville Chase, everyone told him he was doing a very foolish thing, as there was no doubt at all that the place was haunted. Indeed, Lord Canterville was a man of honour and he had felt his duty to mention this fact to Mr Otis when they came to discuss terms.

«We have not cared to live in the place ourselves», said Lord Canterville. «Some years ago my grandaunt, the Duchess of Bolton, was frightened into a fit by two skeleton hands being placed on her shoulders as she was dressing for dinner. And I have to tell you, Mr Otis, that the ghost was seen by several living members of my family, too. And Lady Canterville often got very little sleep at night, because of the mysterious noises that came from the corridor and the library.»

«My Lord», answered the Minister, «I will take the furniture and the ghost for a valuation. I come from a modern country, where we have everything that money can buy. I reckon that if there were such a thing as a ghost in Europe, we'd have it at home in a very short time in one of our public museums».

«I fear that the ghost exists», said Lord Canterville, smiling. «It has been well-known for three centuries, since 1584, and if you don't mind a ghost in the house, it is all right. Only you must remember I have warned you.»

A few weeks after this, the purchase was completed; the Minister and his family went down to Canterville Chase. Mrs Otis was a very beautiful, middle-aged woman with fine eyes and a superb profile. Her eldest son Washington was a fair-haired, rather good-looking young man, well known as an excellent dancer.

Miss Virginia E. Otis was a little girl of fifteen, lithe and lovely as a fawn, with large blue eyes.

After Virginia, the twins came, who were usually called «The Stars and Stripes», as they were always getting swished. They were delightful boys.

It was a lovely July evening, and the air was delicate. But as they entered the avenue of Canterville Chase, however, the sky became suddenly overcast with clouds, and, before they reached the house, some big drops of rain had fallen.

An old woman was standing on the steps to receive them. She was neatly dressed in a black silk dress with a white cap and apron. This was Mrs Umney, the housekeeper. And she said in an old-fashioned manner, «I bid you welcome to Canterville Chase». Following her, they passed the hall and entered the library, a long, low room at the end of which was a large window. Here they found tea laid out for them, they sat down and began to look round, while Mrs Umney was waiting for them.

Suddenly Mrs Otis caught a sight of a dull red stain on the floor just by the fireplace and said to Mrs Umney, «I am afraid something has been spilt there».

«Yes, madam», replied the old housekeeper in a low voice, «blood has been spilt on that spot».

«How horrid», cried Mrs Otis. «I don't care at all for blood stains in a sitting-room. It must be removed at once».

The old woman smiled, and answered in the same low, mysterious voice, «It is the blood of Lady Eleanor de Canterville, who was murdered on that very spot by her own husband, Sir Simon de Canterville, in 1575. Sir Simon has disappeared suddenly under very mysterious circumstances. His body has never been discovered, but his guilty spirit still haunts the Chase. The blood stain has been much admired by tourists and others, and cannot be removed».

«That is all nonsense», cried Washington Otis. «Pinkerton's Champion Stain Remover will clean it up in no time», and before the terrified housekeeper could interfere he had fallen upon his knees, and was rapidly scouring the floor with a small stick. In a few moments no trace of the blood stain could be seen.

«I knew Pinkerton would do it», he exclaimed triumphantly, but no sooner he had said these words a terrible flash of lightning lit up the room, a fearful peal of thunder made them all start to their feet, and Mrs Umney fainted.

«What a monstrous climate!» said the American Minister. «I guess the old country is so overpopulated that there is no good weather for everybody.»

«My dear Hiram», cried Mrs Otis, «what can we do with a woman who has fainted?»

«Don't pay attention», answered the Minister, «she won't faint after that». And in a few moments Mrs Umney certainly came to life.

«I have seen the things with my own eyes, sir», she said, «that will make any Christian's hair stand on end». Mr Otis and his wife warmly assured the honest soul that they were not afraid of ghosts.

5. Look at the table. What are these people? Complete the first column.

AUSTRALIA

The ancient Greek philosophers and geographers such as Aristotle and Pythagoras first postulated the existence of a Great Southern Land more than 2000 years ago. They believed such a continent must exist in order to keep the Earth in balance.

Sixty thousand years ago ancient Aboriginal people had come to an island continent long before the Europeans' arrival. They had named its plants and birds and animals, mapped the land's great features, recorded its history and established their own unique relationship with its warm, red earth. For thousands of generations they had passed on this knowledge in songs and dances, in rock art and engravings.

Of course, the first European explorers were impressed greatly and named Australia the land of parrots because of brightly coloured birds living in the trees. It was a bizarre country, with black swans, strange trees, kangaroos, koalas, platypuses and beautiful coloured birds. And though in 1788, the landing of the Europeans brought irreparable changes to the Aborigines, Australia is left a unique country. A trip to Australia remains one of the world's ultimate journeys. And even nowadays for many travellers it is an epoch-making event in their lives.

Reading

5. Read the text and answer the questions.

In the UK we have two main kinds of newspapers: broadsheets and tabloids. Originally these names came from the size of the newspapers. A tabloid format was smaller and the broadsheet format newspaper was bigger.

But nowadays when we talk about tabloids and broadsheets, we talk about two different kinds of newspapers: easy reading and quality newspapers.

Tabloids report news in a very condensed form. They write about celebrities, the British Royal Family, sport, crime stories and scandals. Broadsheets give their readers long, detailed reports on the latest news and focus on more serious things: politics, economy of the government, international events, business, culture.

1. What was the difference between tabloids and broadsheets in the past?
2. What is the difference between them nowadays?
3. What do tabloids write about?
4. What do broadsheets focus on?

6. Complete the sentences with the following words and expressions. Some words can be used more than once.

intriguing headlines, broadsheets, tabloids, reliable, serious things, The Times

1. There are two main types of newspapers in the UK — broadsheets and tabloids.
2. _____ are bigger and heavier, they write about ... and their information is usually very _____.
3. The English Queen starts her day with one of them — _____.
4. _____ are smaller, they have more pictures and photos than serious information, but a lot of people prefer them, because they are more fun. Their _____ attract millions of readers every day.

7. Which of the facts refer to tabloids and which to broadsheets? Complete the table.

Broadsheets	Tabloids

1. They are heavier.
2. Their information is always very reliable.
3. You can find jokes and crossword puzzles there.
4. Business people start their day with them.
5. Sometimes they don't check their information and get in trouble for that.
6. They always separate facts and comments.
7. They publish a lot of photographs.
8. They write a lot about celebrities and their secrets, scandals and private life.
9. They publish horoscopes.
10. They never publish gossip.
11. More people buy them.
12. They use intriguing headlines.
13. Sometimes they write about small unimportant events because they're interesting for readers.

Spot on Cardinal Numerals

Cardinal numerals are used in counting. Numerals from thirteen to nineteen are formed by means of the suffix -teen. Numerals indicating tens are formed by means of the suffix -ty.

- | | | |
|--------------|-----------------|---|
| 0 zero | 18 eighteen | 90 ninety |
| 1 one | 19 nineteen | 100 a hundred |
| 2 two | 20 twenty | 105 a hundred and five |
| 3 three | 21 twenty-one | 110 a hundred and ten |
| 4 four | 22 twenty-two | 300 three hundred |
| 5 five | 23 twenty-three | 305 three hundred and five |
| 6 six | 24 twenty-four | 1000 a thousand |
| 7 seven | 25 twenty-five | 1015 a thousand and fifteen |
| 8 eight | 26 twenty-six | 5526 five thousand, five hundred and twenty-six |
| 9 nine | 27 twenty-seven | 100 000 a hundred thousand |
| 10 ten | 28 twenty-eight | 1 000 000 a million |
| 11 eleven | 29 twenty-nine | 4 882 060 four million, eight hundred eighty-two thousand and sixty |
| 12 twelve | 30 thirty | 1 000 000 000 a billion |
| 13 thirteen | 40 forty | |
| 14 fourteen | 50 fifty | |
| 15 fifteen | 60 sixty | |
| 16 sixteen | 70 seventy | |
| 17 seventeen | 80 eighty | |

Dates

Here are the ways of saying years:

1995 — nineteen ninety-five; 1800 — eighteen hundred.

There are two ways of saying years ending in «01» to «09»:

1801 — eighteen oh one; eighteen hundred and one.
2005 — twenty and five; twenty hundred and five.

The numerals hundred, thousand, million in plural are used without the ending -s:

500 — five hundred 4 000 — four thousand
2 000 000 — two million.

When we say telephone numbers, we always say each figure separately. But if a telephone number contains a double number (the first two figures or the last two) we use the word «double», but in the middle we do not use the word «double».

For example:

The number 553*10*44 is read double five three one oh double four.

The number 358*37*21 is read three five eight three seven two one.

The number 234*33*09 is read two three four three three oh nine.

11. Write down these figures in words.

1001, 2110, 17, 22, 35, 158, 10, 322, 1234, 567, 69, 563, 679, 1, 2, 6, 9, 120, 10435, 132987, 1234598

12. Play a game. Name as many Ukrainian newspapers and magazines as you can. You've got only two minutes. Find out the winner.

Reading

8. Read the pupils' information projects about mass media and the British Press. Do you agree with them? Give your reasons.

Do we need mass media? Why?

No doubt that people need mass media because mass media are the various ways by which information and news are given to large numbers of people. Mass media have done and continue doing much to excite an interest in every aspect of the country's life. Mass media now play an important role in shaping our opinions. Mass media consist of the press (newspapers and magazines), radio, TV and, of course, the Internet, which are called to inform people about problems, events and opinions.

There is no mention that the press is considered to be the fourth power of a state alongside with legislative, executive and judicial power. It is necessary to say that the Ukrainians are good press readers, so the press has a tremendous influence upon people's minds and souls.

Newspapers are called to inform people about problems, events and opinions, to criticise public institutions and government and help them solve their problems, to control the work of public institutions and government, shape public opinion.

One should mention newspapers are divided into the quality papers which are large in size and have detailed articles about national and international events, and the tabloids which are smaller in size, have more pictures and shorter articles about less important events and private lives of well-known people. Newspapers may be daily morning and daily evening. They may be weekly, Sunday, serious, popular. Newspapers publish political information, deliver domestic and foreign news, provide sports news, and give stories of film stars.

Magazines provide reading materials about fashion, clothes, cooking, dieting, house and home, motoring and holidays; publish sections with articles on travel, food and wine, and other leisure topics. Needless to say that magazines for women are the most flourishing. They cater for all tastes and interests.

In addition, radio and TV are inseparable parts of our lives, because it is very easy to get information from radio or TV.

But as for me, now my main source of news is the Internet.

Making a conclusion, I would like to mention that it would not be an exaggeration to say that people need mass media because they provide large numbers of people with information and news of different aspects of people's social life. The variety of mass media is great and it is your choice to be made.

Mariia Krolevets

The British Press

Speaking about the British press, it is necessary to say that the press is divided into the quality papers, which are large in size and have detailed articles about national and international events (The Times, The Guardian, The Independent, The Financial Times); and the tabloids, which are smaller in size, have more pictures and shorter articles about less important events and private lives of well-known people (The Daily Express, The Sun, The Daily Mirror). Newspapers may be daily: morning (The Times, The Daily Mirror) or evening (The Star, The Evening News), weekly, Sunday (The Sunday Times, The Observer).

As to the variety of newspapers and magazines, they may be serious, popular, can have public and political information, can be about animals, foreign news, can provide sports events, and give stories of film stars, articles for women, children, and for those who prefer entertainment. Magazines provide reading materials about fashion, clothes, cooking, dieting, house and home, motoring and holidays; have sections with articles on travel, food and wine and other leisure topics. Magazines for women are the most flourishing; magazines cater for all tastes and interests (Amateur Gardening, British Chess Magazine, Good Housekeeping, Do-It-Yourself).

I'm not sure. I like it.

OK. Right.

Yes, sure.

10. Read the text and complete the table. Olha is telling her friend about the members of her family and what information they are interested in.

A lot of different newspapers and magazines are published nowadays. But we don't subscribe to newspapers or magazines, our family buy them. Which ones? It depends upon our tastes. My sister likes to read a tabloid. She says it's easy to read as the articles are short and nice. She likes reading all the latest gossip about her favourite TV stars. She also reads her horoscope though she knows that it's not really true, or does crosswords if she has time.

My father buys newspapers which contain a lot of information, the latest news about home and foreign politics.

My Mum is interested in new ways of decorating our home, ideas for holidays, reviews of plays or concerts and readers' letters.

As for me my main source of news is now the Internet. I can read about the latest news online. I can also visit any of my favourite websites to look for the materials I'm interested in.

Anyhow, newspapers and magazines are part of our lives.

A Short History of the BBC

John Reith

The British Broadcasting Company started its life in 1922. It had a staff of four. John Reith became a general manager a month later.

Radio listening spread widely during the 1930s, thanks to people gathering together to listen to national and sporting events, while the BBC also became a major patron of the arts, commissioning music and drama.

The BBC Television Service was launched in November, 1936.

Bruce Belfrage was on air when the bomb hit Broadcasting House in October, 1940. He paused as he heard the bomb explosion during his nine o'clock bulletin — but continued, as he was not allowed to react because of security reasons. Seven people were killed.

The Empire Service moved into the new headquarters at Bush House to broadcast for occupied Europe.

Television made steady progress, broadcasting during 30 hours each week by 1950, and 50 by 1955. Families rushed to buy sets to watch the Queen’s coronation in 1953.

After careful planning, BBC Two was launched in 1964, Radio 1 in 1967, and later there was the re-organisation of Radios 2, 3 and 4. The same year colour television came to BBC Two.

A new Radio 5 was launched in 1990, becoming a news and sports network. Now, it has launched new children’s TV services, a cultural network, as well as a collection of digital radio services.

5. Change these sentences from the text into sentences with the verbs in the Passive Voice.

1. The British Broadcasting Company started its life in 1922.
2. People were listening to national and sporting events.
3. Bruce Belfrage was in live broadcast when the bomb hit Broadcasting House in October, 1940.

- 7. BBC has launched a collection of digital radio services now. (What?)

7. Read Olha's e-mail to Jack. She is telling him about an impressive fact from the history of broadcasting. Say what you think of such interpretations of the words in bold.

Dear Jack,

How are you? I have something really interesting to tell you. We've studied different radio programmes and shows at school and our teacher has told us a very impressive story. Have you ever heard about The War of the Worlds by H.G.Wells?

Well, The War of the Worlds is an episode of an American radio drama. It was performed as a Halloween special on October 30, 1938 by the director Orson Welles.

The first half of the 60-minute broadcast was presented as a series of news bulletins, and suggested that an actual Martian invasion was in progress. It caused panic among the listeners. So, Orson Welles won fame. Welles' adaptation is the most well-known radio dramatic production in history.

So, what do you think of it? We were astonished.

Hope to hear from you soon,

5. Read the text below. For each of the empty spaces (1—6) choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

The Lumière brothers, Auguste and Louis, were the sons of a well-known portrait painter Antoine Lumière. They were both technically-minded and excellent in science subjects and were⁽¹⁾ sent to Technical School. By early 1895, the brothers had invented their own device combining a camera with a printer and projector, and called it the Cinematograph and _____⁽²⁾ it on February 13, 1895. The Cinematograph was much smaller than Edison’s Kinetograph and was about five kilogrammes. The Lumières used a film speed of 16 frames per second, much slower compared with Edison’s 48.

The brothers kept their new _____⁽³⁾ as a closely-guarded secret. Auguste organised private screenings to the invited guests only. The first of such _____⁽⁴⁾ was on March 22, 1895 at 44 Rue de Rennes in Paris. The brothers continued to show their invention privately preparing for their first public screening on December 28 at the Grand Café on Paris’s Boulevard de Capuchines. Such screenings generated much discussion and widespread excitement as for this new technology.

Louis photographed the world around him and some of his first films were _____⁽⁵⁾ films, like workers leaving a factory. The brothers began to open theatres to show their films which became known as _____⁽⁶⁾. For the first four months of 1896 they had opened Cinematograph theatres in London, Brussels, Belgium and New York. In 1900 the brothers projected a film on a huge 99 x 79 foot screen at the Paris Exposition.

And in 1907 they produced the first colour film.

5. to whizz to move very quickly
6. moonbeam a shining line of light from the moon
7. achievement something important that you succeed in doing by your own efforts

2. Read the text and answer the questions given below the text.

The storm was raging hard all that night. The next morning when they came down to breakfast, they found the terrible stain of blood once again on the floor. «I don't think it can be the fault of the Paragon Detergent», said Washington. He rubbed out the stain at once, but the second morning it appeared again. The third morning also it was there, though the library door had been locked up at night by Mr Otis himself, and the key — carried upstairs. The whole family was now quite interested; that night all doubts about the objective existence of a ghost were removed for ever.

The day was warm and sunny; and, in the cool of the evening, the whole family went out for a drive. At eleven o'clock the family retired, and by half past eleven all the lights were out. Some time after, Mr Otis was awakened by a curious noise in the corridor, outside his room. It sounded like the clank of metal, and seemed to be coming nearer every moment. He got up at once, struck a match, and looked at the time. It was exactly one o'clock. He put on his slippers and opened the door. Right in front of him he saw, in the moonlight, an old man of terrible aspect. His eyes were as red burning coals; long grey hair fell over his shoulders; his garments were soiled and ragged, and heavy manacles hung from his wrists and ankles.

«My dear sir», said Mr Otis, «I really must insist on your oiling those chains, and have brought you for that purpose a small bottle of oil. I'll leave it here for you by the bedroom candles, and will be happy to supply you with more». With these words the United States' Minister laid the bottle down on a table, and, closing his door, retired to rest.

For a moment the Canterville ghost stood quite motionless; then, dashing the bottle violently upon the polished floor, he fled down the corridor, uttering groans, and emitting a horrible green light. Just as he reached the top of the great oak staircase, suddenly two little white-robed figures appeared and a large pillow whizzed past his head! He vanished and the house became quite quiet.

On reaching a small secret chamber in the left wing, he leaned up against a moonbeam to recover his breath, and tried to realise his position. Never, in a brilliant career of three hundred years, he had been so terribly insulted. He thought of the Dowager Duchess, whom he had frightened into a fit as she stood before the glass in her lace and diamonds; of the four housemaids, who had gone off into hysterics when he merely grinned at them through the curtains; of the rector, whose candle he had blown out as he was coming late one night from the library, and of old Madame de Tremouillac, who woke up one morning early and saw a skeleton seating in an arm-chair by the fire and reading a book. All his great achievements came back to him again and he smiled bitterly to himself. And after all this, some modern Americans were to come and offer him the oil, and throw pillows at his head! No ghosts in history had ever been treated in this manner.

1. What did the family find the next morning?
2. How many times did Washington rub the stain out?
3. What was Mr Otis awakened by?
4. What did the old man look like?
5. Why did the Canterville ghost vanish?
6. Who did the ghost think of?

3. Act out the reminiscences of the Canterville ghost.

The Outback

I. Read the text and mark the following statements T (true) or F (false).

Dryness and heat characterise the Outback, a region in the heart of Australia that stretches 2000 kilometres from the north to the south and 2500 kilometres from the east to the west. The Great Victorian Desert, Great Sandy Desert, Gibson Desert are to the west, the Simpson Desert, Sturt's Stony Desert are to the east and the Tanami Desert is to the north-west of Alice Springs.

Unlike the Sahara, Australia's deserts are usually not endless expanses of sand but sparsely vegetated dunes and clay or salt pans. In other areas patchy grasslands replaced with savanna and dry creeks are often marked by stunted eucalyptuses and acacias.

The years of drought can scorch the red earth of the Outback till it is hard to believe that any living thing could survive. Dust devils dance over the plains lifting the dry sand into airy columns and the silence is sometimes broken by the occasional cawing of a crow. And only in the dampness along the creek protected from the worst of the desert winds the unique palms grow.

But when the rain comes the barren land is transformed into a garden. The land is covered with the carpet of pink, white, yellow, red, cream and blue flowers. Different birds, insects, reptiles and desert mammals appear on most of these short patches of favourable conditions to ensure at least that another generation will survive.

1. outback ['aʊtbæk]	малонаселена місцевість; необжиті райони
2. endless ['endlɪs]	безмежний, нескінченний; незліченний
3. expanse [ɪks'pæns]	простір
4. sparse [spɑːs]	рідкий; розкиданий; розсіяний
5. clay [kleɪ]	глина; глинозем; грязь
6. dune [djuːn]	дюна
7. pan [pæn]	улоговина; заглиблення в ґрунті
8. patchy ['pætʃɪ]	плямистий, укритий плямами, строкатий
9. grassland ['grɑːslænd]	район луків і пасовищ
10. savanna [sə'vænə]	савана
11. creek [kriːk]	гірло річки; невелика затока, струмок
12. stunted ['stʌntɪd]	низькорослий (хирлявий)
13. eucalyptus [juːkə'lıptəs]	евкаліпт; (pl. eucalyptuses, eucalypti)
14. acacia [ə'keɪʃə]	акація; ріжкове дерево
15. to scorch [skɔːtʃ]	висушувати; вигорати; випалювати
16. drought [draʊt]	посуха, засуха; посушливість
17. to caw [kɔː]	каркати, кричати
18. barren ['bærən]	безплідний; виснажений (про ґрунт), неродючий

Reading

10. Read and listen to the interview with Vanessa Mae. Act it out.

This is Vanessa Mae's interview during her Greek-TV appearance. Listen to it. And then read it.

Hostess Roula Koromila: Vanessa, I would like to welcome you...

Vanessa Mae: Thank you, it's great to be here! I would like to try to say «gia sou Roula» («hello Roula») and also I would like to say «herome pou ime edo» («I'm glad to be here»).

Hostess Roula Koromila: Hey, your Greek sounds great. Vanessa, did you expect that you would become so popular playing a «difficult» instrument such as the violin?

Vanessa Mae: Yes, it's true. You see I've always played the violin as a classical instrument since my early childhood. But when I started trying new things at the age of 14—15, it was a gamble, I didn't know what people would expect. But when the first pop album «Violin Player» came out, a lot of people loved it and, when I began the world tour, it was great to see how many people really loved the violin. So, I didn't expect it. I just did it for myself. I wanted to do something new for the world of the violin and the music.

Hostess Roula Koromila: World tours, live appearances, awards, interviews... Can a 19-year-old girl cope with the weight of so many obligations?

Vanessa Mae: Yes, I think so, because it wasn't a shock to me. I started giving interviews, playing concerts when I was 12. So I think I was prepared. I have always liked to travel, and people who have liked the music and bought the album, always want to hear the person who plays and talks about it. OK, I can be interviewed every week, but it's always a pleasure.

Hostess Roula Koromila: What is the meaning of success for you, besides being loved by the fans?

Vanessa Mae: I think that success is something that is... a personal definition. I think that it's success for anything I do — if I've done it as well as I could do in that situation, if I'm happy with my performance, whether it's a concert or anything else. Success is given through your work, through what you love.

Hostess Roula Koromila: How does your family cope with your success? How does your boyfriend cope with it?

Vanessa Mae: They're really excited, my family is great, and they're really interested in what I've been doing and they've always played a great role in my success.

Hostess Roula Koromila: Would you like sometimes to perform at the Acropolis?

Vanessa Mae: Absolutely yes. I'd love to play at the Acropolis, definitely. This is my second visit to Greece. The first time I came I didn't have a chance to visit the Acropolis. But I remember my studying at school and Greek mythology. So I really really would like to bring a part of my music into my studying of Greek culture and to play at the Acropolis for all the Greek fans. I'd love it.

Hostess Roula Koromila: Tell us, how do you imagine yourself in 20 years?

Vanessa Mae: Twenty years! I hope I'll still be enjoying music. I think music will always be a great part of my life; as long as I enjoy it, as long as people show their appreciation of my music... But I think I'll work at different things that don't interest me at the moment, but music will always be with me, in 20 years or in 30 years.

Dealing with «True» or «False» Answers.

8. Listen, read Tom's letter and say what Tom is writing about.

Dear Julia,
 Haven't heard from you for ages. I hope you'll be surprised but I've started learning the saxophone. It happened a year and a half ago. At first I found it difficult to remember which keys to press in order to play the different notes. But now my friend has helped me improve my technique. He is into jazz. Of course, I'm still not very good but at least I can play some simple tunes.
 You know, learning to play a musical instrument requires a lot of practice and I try to do my best to become a good saxophonist. Eventually I hope to join a band.
 And what about you? Aren't you going to learn to play a musical instrument? What instrument are you interested in? Time is flying and tastes differ.
 Hope to hear from you soon,
 Tom

9. Homework. Do an information and research project. Find information about your favourite singer or band who's taken part in Eurovision. Present it to the class.

It is interesting to know

- In 2009 Norway and Alexander Rybak received the highest total points in the history of Eurovision: 387 points.
- Luxembourg has won 5 times. But none of the 5 winners came from Luxembourg. Four were French and one (Vicky Leandros) was Greek.

- The percentage of viewers of the Eurovision Song Contest has been higher in Australia than in some of the competing nations.
- Australia has been in the contest one time. In the contest in 2015 Australia was invited to participate in the Grand Final, represented by Guy Sebastian. They finished 5th.
- Ireland holds the record of most victories in the Eurovision Song Contest: seven! Six of these victories were in the 80s and 90s: 1980, 1987, 1992, 1993, 1994 and 1996.

- Loreen who won for Sweden in 2012 received the highest number of 12 points of any entry in the contest's history with eighteen countries giving the song their top marks.
- The Eurovision Song Contest is broadcast across five continents.
- Serbia participated the first time as an independent country in 2007 and won the contest the same year.
- The longest-running losers are the Portuguese, having never made the top five.
- In 1969 there were four winners! They all had the same points, and back then there were no rules for a tie. If there's a tie today, the country with points from most countries will win.
- Norway has ended last nine times! They came last in 1963, 1969, 1974, 1976, 1978, 1981, 1990, 1997 and 2001.
- The 60th Eurovision Song Contest in 2015 had a record number of countries in the Grand Final: 27.
- The largest number of nations to take part was 43 in 2008, 2011 and 2016.
- There have been five barefoot winners in Eurovision history: Sandie Shaw (1967), Sertab Erener (2003), Dima Bilan (2008), Loreen (2012) and Emmelie De Forest (2013).
- In 2015 Finland's song «Aina Mun Pitaa» only ran for 1 minute and 27 seconds. The shortest song in the history of the Eurovision Song Contest.
- The Eurovision Song Contest is one of the longest-running recurring television broadcasts in the world.
- It is not allowed to have more than six people on stage (including backup singers and dancers). Until Eurovision 1971 the limit was three.
- Norway won the contest in 1995 with the song «Nocturne». It contained only 24 words accompanied by long violin solos.
- All Eurovision songs must not be longer than three minutes.
- The previous year's winner hosts Eurovision but it's so expensive that nations have pleaded poverty to get out of it. The countries who have opted out include the Netherlands, France, Monaco, and Luxembourg and the job went to the UK four times.

What Makes a Good Pianist

When I was a kid, my family could only afford to send one child to a private piano lesson — it was expensive — and my older sister got to be the one to go. It seemed like going to get some privilege that I was not going to get, so I threw a temper tantrum for several days.

I was four years old. Finally my Dad said, «OK, OK, OK, just be quiet, you can go». And after the second lesson I wanted to quit, because I didn't know I was supposed to come home every day and practise. So I said, «Thanks, Dad, but now I don't want to do it», and he said, «Oh no, no, no, it doesn't go that way».

So from four years old until about eleven years old, playing the piano was not fun. I mean, there were other things that I thought I should be doing. At eleven years old I started studying at the musical college which is now the musical college of Roosevelt University. That's when things changed. I started hearing things within the music then and started seeing things between the notes. I got there instead of listening to my parents' saying, «You'd better go there and practise». They would say, «Gee, it's 11 o'clock, don't you want to stop practising now?»

The tables had turned. I could just sit at the piano for hours. I loved the sound of it, the feel of it.

Writing

How to Write a Descriptive Essay

A descriptive essay tries to create a vivid experience for a reader. Great descriptive essays achieve this affect by using detailed observations and descriptions.

How should you write your description?

As you write your descriptive essay, the best way to create a vivid experience for your readers is to focus on the five senses (sight, sound, smell, touch, taste), as you provide specific details that show your readers rather than tell them.

Consider these two simple examples:

- I grew tired after dinner. (This sentence tells readers that you grew tired after dinner.)
- As I leaned back and rested my head against the top of the chair, my eyelids began to feel heavy, and the edges of the empty plate in front of me blurred with the white tablecloth. (The second sentence shows readers that you grew tired. It enables readers to imagine or experience something for themselves.)

Planning your descriptive essay:

- What do you want to describe?
- What is the reason for writing your description?
- What are the particular qualities that you want to focus on?

Revising your descriptive essay.

7. Write a short commentary for an Internet blog: what is more important for you, the melody or the lyrics. You can read some examples taken from the Internet. After reading give an example of your choice.

1. In my opinion the music is far more important. Somebody may disagree with me, but if Elton John didn't have such incredible music, his lyrics may never have seen the light of a day.

The music is the foundation. But it's the music that gives you things like feel, rhythm, dynamic, melody and atmosphere. Music lifts the words off the page! There are many songs with such great music that they can allow a weaker lyric. But if you pair a great lyric with weak music, it won't have a chance. Of course, you have a hit if a magnificent lyric is to pair with top music and melody.

By Donna Valentine

2. It all depends on the song. So many songs I've come across have had incredibly inspiring lyrics, but the music or the voice of the singer was terrible. Other songs have really annoying words, but the instrumentals are beautiful. In order to write the perfect song, you need to have a balance of each. I do not like One Direction and I never have liked, but a song that fits the perfect category for me has to be Story of My Life. The lyrics are beautiful and the instrumentals are incredible. That's just my opinion but I feel that both aspects are of equal importance.

By Zoe Buchanan

3. I feel it's the lyrics that do the magic and help us connect to a singer/song. The lyrics are what speaks to you, what pulls you. When I hear a song, I fall in love with the lyrics first, then the music. So when I want to care only about music, I listen to songs in foreign languages or just instrumentals.

It's interesting to know!

- Music is able to animate a faded flower.
- If you turn on music during your training, it will increase your productivity by 20 %.
- Listening to music improves memory and mind (especially Vivaldi's Four Seasons).
- Favourite tracks reduce pain and anxiety.
- Music makes you more responsible and persistent.

8. Group work. Do the information and research project «Music».

Project Suggestions

End Product: the poster with your descriptive essays about music and its styles.

Plan

- Make up a group.
- Choose your editor-in-chief and designer.
- Decide what styles/musical bands you will mention.
- Divide the styles/bands among the members of your group.
- Each member should think about the sides he/she values most in this style/musical band.
- Place each essay on the poster and decorate its place, and then show it to your classmates.

9. Circle the correct variant.

1. She likes music very much and she'll go / she goes to the concert when the lessons are over.
2. Don't worry. I wash up / I'll wash up.
3. We decide / We'll decide which film to see: the musical comedy or the thriller as soon as we get here.
4. I invite / I'll invite Jack to a concert of my favourite band before he goes back to the USA.
5. When it stops raining, we go / we'll go for a walk.
6. After you bring me a book I'll help / I help you.

| 10. The old Canterville walked back | j was little Virginia. |

The next morning when the Otis family met at breakfast, they discussed the ghost at some length.

For the rest of the week they were undisturbed, the only thing that excited any attention was the continual renewal of the blood stain on the library floor. This certainly was very strange, as the door was always locked at night by Mr Otis, and the windows kept closely shut. The chameleon-like colour of the stain also excited a good deal of comments. On some mornings it was dull red, then vermilion or rich purple, and once when they came down for family prayers, they found it bright emerald-green. These kaleidoscopic changes naturally amused the party very much, and bets on the subject were made every evening. The only person who did not want to joke was little Virginia because it distressed her greatly.

The second appearance of the ghost was on Sunday night. Shortly after they had gone to bed they were suddenly alarmed by a fearful crash in the hall. Rushing downstairs, they found that a large suit of old armour had become detached from its stand, and had fallen on the stone floor, and the Canterville ghost was sitting in a chair rubbing his knees.

The ghost started up with a wild shriek of rage, and swept through them like a mist, extinguishing Washington Otis's candle as he was passing, and so leaving them all in total darkness. On reaching the top of the staircase he recovered himself, and determined to give his celebrated peal of demoniac laughter. This he had found extremely useful.

But hardly the fearful echo had died away Mrs Otis opened the door and came out in a light blue dressing gown. «I am afraid you are far from well», she said, «and have brought you a bottle of tincture». The ghost looked at her in fury, and began at once to make preparations for turning himself into a large black dog. The sound of approaching footsteps made him hesitate and vanish with a deep groan, just as the twins had come up to him.

On reaching his room he broke down. For some days after that he was extremely ill. However, by taking great care of himself, he recovered, and resolved to make the third attempt to frighten the United States' Minister and his family. Towards evening a violent storm of rain came on, and the wind was so strong that all the windows and doors in the old house shook and rattled. In fact, it was just such weather as he loved.

At half past ten he heard the family going to bed. At a quarter past eleven all was still. He stepped stealthily out of the wall, with an evil smile on his cruel, wrinkled mouth. He chuckled to himself, but the next moment he fell back with a piteous wail of terror. Right in front of him was standing a horrible spectre! Its head was bald and burnished; its face was round, and fat, and white. From the eyes streamed rays of scarlet light, the mouth was a wide well of fire. On its breast was a placard with strange writing.

Never having seen a ghost before, he naturally was terribly frightened, and, after a second quick glance at the awful phantom, he hurried back to his room. After a time, however, the brave old Canterville spirit decided to go and speak to the other ghost as soon as it was daylight. On reaching the spot a terrible sight met his gaze. Something had happened to the ghost. The head slipped off and rolled on the floor, the body was lying on its back, and he found himself holding a white bed-curtain, with a sweeping brush, a kitchen knife, and a hollow turnip lying at his feet! Unable to understand this curious transformation, he took the placard and there, in the grey morning light, he read these fearful words:

YE OLDE GHOSTE

Ye Onlie True and Originale Spook.

Beware of Ye Imitationes.

He had been tricked, foiled, and outwitted! The old Canterville walked back with silent feet and then retired to a coffin, and stayed there till the evening.

- f. When _____ reached his small secret chamber in the left wing, he leaned up against a moonbeam and thought about all his great achievements.

4. What was the Canterville Ghost going to tell the other spirit? Tell your classmates about it.

The Rain Forests

I. Answer the questions.

1. What do you know about the rain forests?
2. Have you ever been to the rain forest?

II. Read the text and complete the sentences.

15 % of the Australian territory was covered with trees before the European settlement. But now only 3 % of the territory is covered with trees and less than 1 % remains of the virgin rain forest. A few hectares of tropical rain forest contain as many species of flora and fauna as all of Europe.

The rain forests are characterised by a dense almost unbroken canopy of different broad-leaved evergreen trees and vines. The vines and lianas hang from branches to the forest floor. Very often ferns, flowers, fruit and orchids grow on branches and trunks with no contact with the soil.

Most creatures and birds of the rain forests cannot survive outside the rain forests. So the destruction of the rain forests is a crime not only against humanity but against the earth because unlike other forms of the Australian bush and forests, the rain forests aren't regenerated after fires.

2. Read the descriptions of the first day at school made by these pupils.

It was such a wonderful day! Though I don't remember very much, as I was only seven and it was a long time ago!

I was walking with my Dad, and Mum was pushing a pram with my little sister Masha. I was so excited! I had a rucksack with some copybooks in it. And I was wearing two big bows in my hair. Nearly forgot, my Dad had bought me a huge bouquet of flowers. The yard was full of noisy, excited kids. Very loud music was playing.

Some boys looked really huge! The bell rang and everybody went inside.

I don't remember the name of my teacher because I studied at that school only for a year, and the next year my parents took me to another school.

I don't remember what we learnt that day. But my parents told me that they were asked to bring a pillow. Nobody knew what for.

All in all, it was a long, tiring but very exciting day.

I didn't go to school as all children did on the 1st of September because of the gymnasium where I wanted to study. There children had to pass exams, and we were called later. So my first day at school was on the 13th of September.

My Granny sewed a dark blue dress with a white collar. I was really beautiful in it. We bought flowers for my first teacher and went to school. I remember that I immediately tried to make friends with other children. I remember that we had English and Art lessons that day. And when my Mum came to take me home, we spent nearly half an hour to gather my crayons, copybooks and books.

My teacher's name was Nadiia and I loved her very much. We spent three years together.

Spot on Question Tags

The meaning of a question tag depends on how you say it.

1. A question tag with a falling intonation is a way of making a conversation by asking the listener to agree with the speaker. It isn't really a question at all.
 - 1) You are going to school, aren't you?
 - 2) You have got a bouquet of beautiful flowers, haven't you?
2. A question tag with a rising intonation is more like a real question. It means «I think I'm right but can you confirm it for me?».
 - 1) You will go to school tomorrow, won't you?
 - 2) You have passed your exams, haven't you?

To make a question tag repeat the main verb and a pronoun (it, he, she, you, they, we). If there is no main verb, use the auxiliary verbs do, does or did.

If the first part of a question tag is positive, then the second part of it will be negative. If the first part of a question tag is negative, then the second part will be positive.

- 1) You don't go to school, do you?
- 2) You have never been to London, have you?
- 3) She has been to London twice, hasn't she?
- 4) You aren't going to learn the third foreign language, are you?

We form positive short answers using «Yes» + personal pronouns + auxiliary verbs.

- 1) You learn English, don't you? — Yes, I do.
- 2) You don't remember your first day at school, do you? — Yes, I do.

We form negative short answers using «No» + personal pronouns + negative auxiliary verbs.

- 1) They went to Scotland last year, didn't they? — No, they didn't.
- 2) She didn't bring a bouquet of flowers on the 1st of September, did she? — No, she didn't.

The question tag for I am is aren't I? The question tag for Let's is shall we?

- 1) I'm a good pupil, aren't I?
- 2) Let's do our homework, shall we?

6. Match the parts of the question tags.

Spot on Adverbs of Place

The adverb is a part of speech. This part of speech usually expresses time, place, manner, condition, degree, result, cause, etc.

The adverbs of place: here, there, everywhere, nowhere, anywhere, somewhere, forward come at the end of the sentence or at the end before the adverb of time.

I'm going to do sport here.
These flowers are everywhere.

Don't you want to do anything?

He will (He'll) be there soon.

7. Read, choose and say what the pupils can do in the lab:

- to record different songs;
- to watch videos in different languages;
- to use the computers for writing essays;
- to learn languages: Russian, Latin and German.

8. Work in groups. Discuss why you think this school was named Rugby School. Read and check your ideas.

William Webb Ellis

The school was given its name because of rugby football. This game was invented here. During this game in 1823, a pupil called William Webb Ellis took the ball in his arms and ran with the ball instead of kicking it! Such initiative wasn't liked by his friends. It took really quite a large number of years before that was incorporated into the game.

For over four hundred years Rugby School was a school for boys. In 1976 Rugby School opened its doors for girls, but only in the sixth form. In 1993 there were big changes at school because of the girls. Now two hundred and ten of the school's seven hundred and ten pupils are girls.

Dealing with the Text:

- Read the text carefully.
- What is it about?
- Underline the key words and try to remember them.
- Read the text again and try to understand its idea.

Although there are less girls than boys, there aren't any difficulties. The only problem is sport. Because rugby was invented here, the boys are very proud of their sport.

Grammar in Rhymes

A noun is the name of anything
As School, Garden, Student or King.
Adjectives tell us about the kind of a noun,
As Great, Small, Pretty, White or Brown,
Instead of nouns the pronoun is,
As Mine, Yours, Ours and His.
Verbs tell us of something being done —
To Read, Count, Laugh, Carry or Run.
How things are done the adverbs tell,
As Slowly, Quickly, Ill or Well.
Conjunctions join the words together,
As men And women, wind And weather.
The preposition stands before
A noun as In or Through a door.
The interjection shows surprise,
As — Oh! How pretty! Ah! How wise!
Three little words you often see
Are articles — A, An and The.
The whole are called the Parts of Speech
Which reading, listening, writing, speaking — teach!

Roald Dahl

6. Look at the picture. What kind of a pupil do you think Matilda was? Read the extract from the book «Matilda» by Roald Dahl and description of her school life below. Were you right?

Matilda was a little late for school. Most children began Primary School at five or even just before, but Matilda's parents had forgotten to bring her to school. She was five and a half when she entered school for the first time.

On her first lesson the teacher asked:

«Now then, who has already learnt the two-times multiplication table?»

Matilda put up her hand. She was the only one. The teacher looked at her sitting in the second row. «Wonderful», she said. «Please, stand up and recite as much of it as you can.»

Matilda stood up and began to say the two-times multiplication table. When she got to twice twelve she didn't stop.

«Stop!» Miss Honey said. «How far can you go?»

«How far?» Matilda said. «Well, I don't really know. For quite a long way, I think.»

«Well», she said, «let us leave sums for the moment and see if any of you have begun to learn to spell. Put up your hands who can spell «cat».

Three hands went up. Now the teacher decided to ask a question that normally she didn't want to ask the class on its first day.

«I wonder whether there is any one of you three who knows how to spell «cat» has learnt how to read long sentences?»

She went to the blackboard and wrote, «I have already begun to learn how to read long sentences».

«Can any of you read the whole sentence?»

«Yes», Matilda said. «I think I can read most things. Although I'm afraid I can't always understand the meanings.»

Miss Honey got to her feet and walked out of the room, but was back in thirty seconds carrying a thick book. She opened it at random.

«This is a book of humorous poetry. See if you can read that one aloud.»

Smoothly, without a pause and at a nice speed, Matilda began to read:

*«An epicure dining at Crew
Found a rather large mouse in his stew.
Cried the waiter, «Don't shout
And wave it about
Or the rest will want one, too.»*

Spot on Descriptive Essays

A descriptive essay about a person should consist of:

- a) an introduction in which you give general information about the person;
- b) a main body in which you describe their physical appearance, personal qualities and hobbies/interests. You start a new paragraph for each topic;
- c) a conclusion in which you write your comments and/or feelings about the person.

When describing someone you know well or see often you should use present tenses. When describing someone who is no longer alive, or someone you knew a long time ago and you do not see any more, you should use past tenses.

Descriptions of people can be found in articles, letters, narratives, etc. The writing style you use depends on the situation and the intended reader. For example, if you are writing an article for a magazine, you should use semi-formal style and a polite, respectful tone.

Reading

4. Read the text and name the types of British schools. Say which type of school you like best of all.

Children in Britain must attend school from the age of 5. But parents can send their children to nursery school at the age of 3. Children spend a few hours at nursery school each day, playing and doing activities with other children.

From the age of 5, education is compulsory and children go to primary school. The first year at primary school is called «reception class». Primary schools are usually divided into the infant school for children aged five to seven and the junior school for children aged seven to eleven.

When the children are 11 years old they go to secondary school and take their GCSE exams at the age of 16. GCSE stands for General Certificate of Secondary Education. They are the official exams after which pupils can leave school. But if they want to stay on they study for another two years and take A-Levels (Advanced Level) at the age of 18. They either stay at school or go to a sixth-form college for students aged between 16 and 18 or a technical college where students can learn the practical skills they need to do a job, for example in computing, metalwork or building and then they can try to get into the University.

There are grammar schools for children aged between 11 and 18 who have to pass an entrance examination to be allowed to go there. These schools are very popular because they offer a good academic education.

There are also public schools. These are very expensive private schools for children aged between 13 and 18 whose parents pay for their education and in some cases they can pay several thousand pounds a year. These schools usually have good academic standards and are attended by children from an upper class. The most famous ones are Eton and Harrow. Most public schools are boarding schools where the pupils live as well as study.

British schools, besides ordinary classes, offer a lot of after-school clubs and different trips. After-school clubs include art and craft clubs, sports and religious clubs and many others. Trips are very popular among pupils but they are becoming less frequent because of the governmental regulations for such trips.

5. Discuss in class.

1. What you like and dislike in the system of education in the UK.
2. Which of the British schools you'd like to go to and why.
3. What you think of the system of education in the UK which is considered to be one of the best in the world.

Reading

6. Read the interview with Jane from London, who is educated at home by her parents. Mark the statements T (true) or F (false).

Interviewer: Jane, thank you for your agreeing to answer our questions. Is it possible not to go to school in your country?

Jane: Yes, it is. The law in the UK says that children must be educated, but it doesn't say that they have to go to school. So, education is compulsory but school isn't.

Interviewer: Do you think it's right?

Jane: Why not? School can be a difficult place for some children because of fear of school, bullying or not fitting in with the school environment. As for me, I'm very shy and it's difficult for me to communicate with others.

Interviewer: Who are your teachers?

Jane: My Mum helps me. She is very strict and I have to do my homework every day. My lessons start at 9:30 and I study the same books that other children are doing at school. Mum works hard to make my lessons interesting. My Mum says it is very important that I am educated in an atmosphere of love and understanding. You know my Mum is the best in the world. And I'd like to recite a poem about my mother.

A word that means the world to me

by Theodor Morse and Howard Jonson

When I was but a baby,
 Long before I learned to walk,
 While lying in my cradle,
 I would try my best to talk.
 It wasn't long before I spoke,
 And all the neighbours heard.
 My folks were very proud of me
 For «mother» was the word.
 Although I'll never claim to fame,
 I'm satisfied to sing her lovely name:
 «M» is for the million things she gave me.
 «O» means only that she's growing old.
 «T» is for the tears she shed to save me.
 «H» is for her heart of the purest gold.
 «E» is for her eyes, with lovely shining.
 «R» means right, and right she'll always be.
 Put them all together; they spell «mother»,
 A word that means the world to me.
 «M» is for the mercy she possesses.
 «O» means that I owe her all I own.
 «T» is for her tender sweet caresses.
 «H» is for her hands that made a home.
 «E» means everything she's done to help me.
 «R» means real and regular, you see.
 Put them all together; they spell «mother»,
 A word that means the world to me.

Interviewer: And do you work hard yourself?

Jane: Oh, yes, I work hard, too, in order to take the exams like other children. I do a lot of tests and I'm sure I'll pass all the exams. Though it's difficult to cover modern subjects much I enjoy learning at home and that is the main thing.

Interviewer: And what about your friends?

Jane: I meet my friends in the evenings and catch up with the latest gossip. We sometimes visit museums and art galleries. I like playing jokes on my friends. There is one joke. A boy who was studying at college sent e-mail to his father, «No mon, no fun, your son». The father answered, «How sad, too bad, your dad». Isn't it funny? And finally, Education, yes! School, no!

11. Read the interview and say what you've liked most of all concerning the learning of languages and why the pupils of Lyceum 51 are happy.

Getting Joy While Studying

Mark Darcy is a successful journalist, who has got the task to take an interview from one of the UNESCO Associated Schools Project participants. He decided to visit International Relations Lyceum 51. He asked some pupils about their studying process, activities.

MD: Hi! I'm Mark Darcy from England. I'd like to ask you some questions for my article in «The Sunday Times».

Ss: Yes, of course. We'll help you with great pleasure.

MD: What can you tell me about your school?

S: I'm Heorhii Tytarenko and firstly I'd like to tell you about the history of our school. Our school was founded in 1889 as a private primary school for girls. For many years the school has been closely associated with the Ministry of Education of Ukraine. Now we have a large collection of valuable materials. Our school has 3 stages:

- Primary school (forms 1—4);
- Secondary school (forms 5—9);
- Lyceum (forms 10—11).

MD: How many languages can you study in your school?

S: Let me speak on the matter. I'm Dasha Ivanova, I study in the 10th form. Besides our native language — Ukrainian — we study foreign languages such as English, French, and German. We can also study Spanish and Japanese additionally.

MD: That's great! It's a high level of education! What about your English lessons?

S: I'd like to tell you in detail about studying English at our Lyceum. I'm Volodymyr Melnyk and I can tell you that it is very interesting to learn another language and culture. Our teacher encourages us to speak much during our lessons. We have a lot of different discussions. We solve problems, share different views, do crosswords, joke... Project activities play a very special role. Sometimes we watch films about different countries or the world's classic in English. We celebrate nearly all the British holidays.

Ss: We are Kateryna Vashchenko, Olha Zarubinska and Serhii Reva and we all like our English lessons, too. Our teacher is Olena Konstantynova and to our mind she is wonderful. At our lessons we do many projects on different topics. This summer we made the project «Cherishing and Preserving Our Cultural Heritage», which is about Kyiv-Pechersk Lavra. And some of our pupils went to England this summer and they are working on a project about London now.

Last year we celebrated Saint Valentine's Day. We talked about interesting traditions connected with this date, had a lot of fun. We have also staged «Tsarevna Non-Laughter» and «Cinderella» plays. This year we are going to stage a new play, «Nutmacker». Last year we also participated in the UNESCO Brain Ring. We won the competition and we had a lot of fun. At our lessons we also learn to communicate in English. We learn English songs and poems, read, do grammar exercises.

To make a conclusion, we would like to say that it is important to know English well, because it is an international language and we are happy with our teacher and lessons.

S: Indeed, we have brilliant teachers. My name is Bohdan Diakovych and I'd like to tell you about our teacher. She is just and patient, and teaches us in an interesting way. Due to Nataliia Zaichenko we have improved our skills in English. She knows our level of English, and she has a special approach to each pupil. We sing songs, play different English games and we are really happy with coming to her lessons. English occupies a very special place in our lives. It's our favourite subject.

S: We study not only English but also Country Studies and a Course of Guides-interpreters. I'm Mariia Didkivska and I'd like to tell you about these subjects. I think that it is very interesting to learn Country Studies. At our lessons we read English books in the original. We also study the history of Great Britain and the USA. This subject helps us understand their culture and customs, be more educated. During our Guides-interpreters lessons we learn translation technique, the translator's etiquette, etc. This experience will help us in our work in communication with other people. To sum it up, I want to tell you we never feel bored during our lessons because they are very interesting and educational.

MD: You said that you celebrated nearly all the British holidays. What is your favourite one?

S: I'm Katia Klynovska. From my point of view Christmas is the most interesting holiday. In Great Britain it is kept on December 25th. Every country seems to have a different way of celebrating Christmas. We also have some traditions of lessons-feasts. Firstly we choose the most creative pupils to make some funny educational games and quizzes. I feel that everybody loves this holiday very much! In fact, we have other celebrations, too. It seems to me that Thanksgiving Day was unforgettable. We had a really lovely cosy home atmosphere with traditional dishes on the table.

MD: Have you had any other holidays at school?

S: Yes, I'm Maryna Bernychuk. As you know, our Lyceum has been a member of the UNESCO Associated Schools Project net since 1997. We've had the European Year of Languages, it was impossible for us to miss that event and not to hold the festival. A great contribution was made by both teachers and pupils. The opening ceremony was named «Spring Begins in February». It was very exciting and we were inspired by the first day. The next day was polylingual. We had also a computer presentation of new French textbooks. Then the Fairy Tale Day came.

We have come to the conclusion that every educated person should know at least several languages and that there is no use in learning artificial languages. Everyone really enjoyed our Languages Festival. I wish there were more such interesting festivals held. They are educational and entertaining and there is much fun.

MD: Excellent! Have you taken part in any conferences or other UNESCO events?

S: Of course! I'm Andrii Zaiets and I have to say that a delegation from our lyceum took part in the United Nations Model. The working language was English.

Our delegation represented not our school but the country of Georgia. Every participant presented a project of a resolution according to the order of Conference in the name of the represented country. After the conference we came to the conclusion that we had to strive to become more active and valuable members of the decentralised network of pupils, teachers, and civic organisations.

MD: Interesting! Now I understand why you are so highly motivated in language learning. Another question: what is the reason for your success in English learning?

Ss: We think that our success as an English-speaking school lies in close cooperation and joint work of pupils and teachers. We are happy that such highly qualified teachers help us in getting the best knowledge. It's great to work side by side with true experts such as Olena Konstantynova, Olena Vyhran, Svitlana Baikova, Olha Torutko, Nataliia Nesterenko, Tetiana Volovyk.

MD: Thanks a lot! I'm really impressed by your lyceum! I wish you further success, creativity and enthusiasm. Good bye!

Ss: The school warmly welcomes visitors at any time!!!

12. Read the pupils' letters from different schools in Kyiv, name these schools and say what you think all these schools have in common.

Dear friends,

My name is Sasha. I've got your address from PTPI. My English teacher told me about this organisation. I've got interested in People to People International School and Classroom Programme that can connect our teachers and pupils with classes in your country for pen pal exchanges and projects that improve cultural understanding and encourage friendship.

I'd like to give some information about my gymnasium. So, I study in Kyiv P. Tychna Gymnasium 191 in Ukraine. My studying takes a big part of my life that's why school has to be a big family and give its pupils much knowledge as my gymnasium does.

Our principal Nina Drozdovych does her best to provide us with all the necessary facilities to study here. There are about 40 classrooms, laboratories, video classrooms, a modern gym and a library with a great number of books on different subjects.

Our gymnasium specialises in learning foreign languages — English, German, French, Italian, Ukrainian. The pupils learn American and English literature, a Business Course and a Course of Guides-interpreters. They are of great help for us in communicating with our friends from different countries. We are proud to have a Euro club in our gymnasium where we can improve our language skills, participate in intercultural dialogue and make new friends.

We're always ready for international collaboration. Let's keep in touch. I'm looking forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Sasha Holovskaia

2.

Dearest Alice,

It has been so wonderful to hear from you! I'm glad you like your new school in Washington, for I know how anxious you were about it all summer! Definitely, it will take some time to adjust and get used to the new environment, but you're a smart one, so don't worry, everything is going to be just fine. In fact, I'm sure that you already have lots of new friends there!

As for me, I've been fine, too, though very much up and down emotionally. Ironically, I begin to realise that I miss Belgium as if it was my home country. Anyway, enough of the sad things! Luckily, school has already started and it's been just great!

Remember how I've been writing letters to countless English boarding schools and applying for scholarships, filled with anxiety that there would be no school in Ukraine to give me a proper education. Well, now that I've seen and experienced my new school's academics I laugh at myself for being so silly!

Besides, every day we have 2 or 3 lessons in English, so I'm really happy that I'll be able to keep up with my English skills and also improve them or to be more correct in filling in the gaps. Our teachers are just perfect for that matter. By the way, my vocabulary teacher's English sounds just like yours, so every time I hear her I often think of you.

At the beginning of school, I was also told that we would have a Scottish lecturer coming in later in the year and that he would be giving us English tests and lectures. This sounds very interesting, don't you think? Especially for me, since, you know, I always wanted to visit Scotland. So here it is, another exciting event to look forward to!

My classmates are just wonderful. So friendly and nice! You know, I was quite scared on the first day, but they showed me such care and interest that by the end of the week I felt like I'd been attending this school for ages!

So, as you can see, Lyceum «Intellect» (oh, I've just noticed that I haven't yet mentioned its name!) is an exciting, creative, and challenging place to learn. And the most important is that with its high educational standards, it brings me closer to our dream of ever studying together at Oxford or Cambridge University, or anywhere else in the world!

Oh, Alice! How much I've already written about myself and the school! Well, here I'll stop tiring you with my long stories! How about you? How have you been? It has been a great change in your life, after all you've just had! Hope you are enjoying your weekend. Don't forget to send me your new telephone number as well! I've so much to tell you and I know you have, too!

Miss you more than ever!

Lots of love, love, love,

Anna

3.

Dear Ann,

How are you? I hope you are fine. In your last letter you asked me about my school.

I study in Kyiv at Klovskiy lyceum 77 in the 10th form. My favourite subject is English. We have eight lessons of English per week.

Our teacher Olexandra Dovgan has been teaching us since the 5th form. Our lessons of English are very interesting, we read a lot of books and watch films in English. Last year my classmates, our teachers Olexandra Dovgan and Svitlana Filimonova went to London.

We had three lessons of English every day, and after lunch we spent time watching different places of interest. Such trips are held in our lyceum every year.

After lessons my friends and I attend our drama club. The leader of our club is Tetiana Siianytsia who helps us improve our English by staging performances. We all love art and English and American literature thanks to our school theatre «Sophite».

Take care,

Kate

4.

Dear Tom,

How are you? I hope you are fine.

In your last letter you asked me about my new school. In fact, it is lyceum «Intellect». It was founded 19 years ago by Serhii Romanovskyi, its headmaster. There are about 500 pupils in the lyceum classes from the 7th to 11th form.

I like studying here very much because my classmates are wonderful. Cosy atmosphere, qualified staff and the whole lyceum itself make me wish to come here every day, discover new things and get new experiences.

We have a usual list of subjects like in other state schools but we also have many lessons of English. We read texts, listen to tapes, watch and discuss videos, work in pairs, do project work and enlarge our vocabulary at Speaking Practice lessons with our teacher Nataliia Honcharuk.

We analyse and study different grammar phenomena and practise using them at English grammar lessons with Liudmyla Shundyk. We dive into the world of English and American literature with Nataliia Hordeieva, who is the author of textbooks on these subjects. Besides, we have Country Studies, a course of the world religions and Business English. We even study Physics in English with Mr Romanovskiy. All our English language teachers headed by deputy director Mrs Hordeieva are creative professionals ready to teach us everything they know themselves.

So, as you can see, lyceum «Intellect» is an exciting and challenging place to learn and I am proud of being its pupil.

Tell me about your school. I will be waiting for your letter.

With my best wishes,

Helen

3. Read the text and answer the questions.

The next day the ghost was very weak and tired. The terrible excitement of the last four weeks was beginning to have its effect. He was completely exhausted. For five days he stayed in his room, and at last made up his mind to give up the point of the blood stain on the library floor. If the Otis family did not want it, they clearly did not deserve it. It was his duty to appear in the corridor once a week, and to gibber from the large window on the first and third Wednesday every month. For the next three Saturdays, he traversed the corridor as usual between midnight and three o'clock, taking every possible precaution against being either heard or seen. He put off his boots, wore a large black velvet coat, and was careful to use oil for oiling his chains. Still, in spite of everything, he was not left in peace. Strings were continually being stretched across the corridor, over which he tripped in the dark. This last insult so offended him that he decided to make one final effort to assert his dignity and social position.

He had not appeared in this disguise for more than seventy years. It was, however, an extremely difficult «make-up». At last everything was ready, and he was very pleased with his appearance. The big leather riding boots that went with the dress were just a little too large for him, and he could only find one of the two horse pistols. When he had reached the room occupied by the twins, he found the door just ajar. Wishing to make an effective entrance, he flung it wide open, when a heavy jug of water fell right down on him, wetting him to the skin. The shock to his nervous system was so great that he fled back to his room as quickly as he could go, and the next day he was laid up with an awful cold.

He now gave up all hope of ever frightening this rude American family. The final blow he received on the 19th of September. He had gone downstairs to the great entrance hall, feeling sure that nobody could see or hear him, and was amusing himself by making satirical remarks on the large photographs of the United States' Minister and his wife. It was about a quarter past two o'clock in the morning. He was strolling towards the library to see if there were any traces left of the blood stain. Suddenly from a dark corner two figures appeared who waved their arms wildly above their heads, and shrieked out «BOO!» in his ear.

He jumped with a panic and rushed to the staircase, but found Washington Otis waiting for him there with the big garden syringe, the ghost vanished into the great iron stove and had to make his way home through the chimney, arriving at his own room in a terrible state of dirt, disorder, and despair.

After this he was not seen again. It was quite evident that his feelings were so wounded that he would not appear. It was obvious that the ghost had gone away, and Mr Otis wrote a letter to Lord Canterville, who, in reply, expressed his great pleasure at the news, and sent his best congratulations to the Minister's family. The Otises, however, were sure the ghost was still in the house.

1. How long was the Canterville ghost exhausted?
2. What way did he behave himself?
3. Did the Otis family forget about his presence in the house?
4. What was his final effort?
5. What did he look like?
6. What happened to him when he opened the twins' room?
7. How did he feel?
8. Who was he attacked by strolling towards the library?
9. How could he escape?
10. Were the Otis family sure that the ghost had left the Chase?

4. Make a dialogue between the brothers about the time after their coming back to the room and act it out.

The Mountains

I. Answer the questions.

1. What do you know about the Australian mountains?
2. Can you name them?
3. What do you think? Are they beautiful?

II. Read the text, look at the pictures and say which mountains are the most beautiful in your opinion. Give your reasons.

Australia is an ancient land. The Snowy Mountains are the highest peaks in a chain of mountains formed two or three million years ago — the Great Dividing Range — which run for 5000 kilometres from Cape York in the north down the eastern coast of Australia to Victoria with the Grampians, a floral natural laboratory where it is possible to see endless varieties of colour, shape and size.

Older mountain ranges include the Flinders Ranges in South Australia, the MacDonnell Ranges in the Northern Territory and the Kimberleys and Hamersley Ranges in the west of the country.

In the Northern Territory we can also see the Kakadu Northern Park — a vast art gallery where the Aborigines have come to paint on the rocks for perhaps 40 000 years.

The Flinders Ranges contain some spectacularly beautiful scenery — saw-toothed sandstone ridges of warm red, blending to blue and purple in the distance.

There are also mountains in Tasmania where volcanoes have formed magnificent peaks and sharp ridges. They are very beautiful.

Reading

9. Read and say what this text is about.

A Library

It is impossible to buy all the books that we want or would like to read. That's why we borrow books from public libraries. We can also order books via the Internet through various online bookshops. Every school has got a library. A school library is a collection of textbooks and books for reading. They are arranged in the alphabetical order. We have a person who is responsible for all the books in our library. It is a librarian.

Students go to the library to read books, look through some magazines and write a book review/report. In book reports children analyse the plot of the book and the personal traits of the main characters. Sometimes the teachers prepare for their lessons at the school library, too. We choose the books and material we need by using a catalogue. In our library we have a wide choice of books to read. In each book there is usually a table of contents where we can see the number of chapters in a book and the year it was published.

10. Jack and Tom have come to St Paul's School library. There are a lot of notices on the walls. Scan the Short Loan Collection notice.

Short Loan Collection

When a lot of students and teachers need the same book, we put one copy of the book in the Short Loan Collection, where it is available for two hours as the library does not buy a lot of extra copies. These books are used inside the library.

After two hours the books are returned to the Desk. Short-loan books are also borrowed overnight — two hours before the library closes — and must be returned by 9 a.m. on the next working day. Fines of 50p per hour per book are charged for late returns.

11. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).

- 1. Books are put in the Short Loan Collection because they are very rare or expensive.
- 2. Books from the Short Loan Collection are never used outside the library.
- 3. If a book is popular, the library always buys a lot of extra copies.
- 4. You can use books from the Short Loan Collection for two hours.

12. Make questions for these sentences. Start with the words in brackets.

1. These books are used inside the library. (Where?)
2. After two hours the books are returned to the Desk. (When?)
3. Short-loan books are also borrowed overnight two hours before the library closes. (What?)
4. Fines of 50p per hour per book are charged for late returns. (What?)

Speaking

Spot on Grammar

The Passive Voice

We use the Passive when we are more interested in the action than the person who does it.

We often use the word by to show who does the action.

To form the Passive we use the correct form of the verb to be and the Past Participle.

The Present Simple

Active: My friend paints the walls of his room every year.

Passive: The walls of the room are painted every year.

The Past Simple

Active: My friend painted the walls of his room last year.

Passive: The walls of the room were painted last year.

The Present Continuous

Active: My friend is painting the walls of his room now.

Passive: The walls of the room are being painted now.

The Past Continuous

Active: My friend was painting the walls of his room when I came to see him.

Passive: The walls of the room were being painted when I came to see him.

The Present Perfect

Active: The room looks nice. My friend has painted its walls.

Passive: The room looks nice. The walls have been painted by my friend.

The Past Perfect

Active: The room looked much better. My friend had painted its walls.

Passive: The room looked much better. The walls had been painted by my friend.

Using can, may, might, must

If you want to talk about something possible, use the modal verb can.

Example: The English can talk about the weather for hours.

If you want to talk about something that is likely to happen, use the modal verbs may or might.

Example: The weather in the UK may change at any moment.

If you want to talk about something that is surely true, use the modal verb must.

Example: Oh, it's very cold today. It must be 25 degrees below zero.

14. Discuss with your classmates: if you have a chance to choose a printed book or an e-book which will you prefer? Give your reasons.

The difference between a paper book and an electronic book.

Paper book (feel its smell; touch it; doesn't hurt eyes; doesn't depend on plug-in, electricity; can borrow it from the library immediately).

E-book (time- and space-saving device; easy to use, carry; pleasant reading from a screen; keeps much information; available through the Internet; it can store one thousand books; books are always at hand; comfortable for travelling).

Advantages	Disadvantages
1. E-books are very handy. 2. Pupils use them instead of printed books. 3. They can store lots of books in their memory. 4. They have modern software. 5. It is easy to carry e-books instead of traditional bags with lots of heavy books. 6. You can use them everywhere.	1. They have a small screen. 2. Nowadays they are expensive. 3. They need electricity. 4. They hurt eyes.

15. What do we do if sometimes we can't find books of modern writers in the library?

- What do we use?
- Is it good or bad to use the Internet?

For	Against
- saves time; - very fast; - you can find books of modern writers and information about them; - you can work at home.	- bad for eyes, back; - insomnia; - you cannot use it everywhere; - needs electricity; - we pay money.

16. Fill in the gaps with appropriate forms of the verbs.

Reading

9. Read the text, choose the most informative, in your opinion, sentences. Say what new information you have got. But first answer these questions.

1. Do you know much about books in Ukraine?
2. What do you know about the first printed books in Ukraine?
3. What places were the first books put out at?

Books in Ukraine

The Gospel of Ostromyr (1056—1057) was the oldest book in Ukraine. Later Yaroslav the Wise set up a library at St Sophia's Cathedral. At first the books were written on parchment and were very expensive.

But in the 14th century paper was mostly used. During the 16th—17th centuries a lot of libraries appeared in Lviv, Ostroh, at the Kyiv Monastery.

The first printed books in Ukraine were «The Apostle», «The Bible of Ostroh». During 1591—1622 the print shop in Lviv put out 13 books, at the Kyiv Monastery of Caves — 40 books and in Chernihiv — more than 50 books.

Fiction appeared in Ukraine at the end of the 18th century. And nowadays there are millions of books in Ukraine. The biggest collections of books, about 13 000 000, are at the Vernadskyi National Library of the Ukrainian National Academy of Sciences.

It is interesting to know

The Vernadskyi National Library of Ukraine is the largest library in the country. The collection contains more than 15 million items. This unique collection includes books, magazines, serials, maps, manuscripts, rare printed books and incunabula, newspapers, and documents of untraditional materials, the most complete collection of Slavic writing, archives of outstanding world and Ukrainian scientists, archives of the National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine and lots more.

Annually, the library receives 160 000—180 000 documents (books, magazines, newspapers, etc.). Its holdings include all Ukrainian publications and copies of all Ukrainian candidate and doctoral theses. The library exchanges materials with more than 1500 research and academic institutions and libraries from 80 countries. As a United depository since 1964, the library receives all English and Russian language publications from the United Nations and its special institutions.

Each year, about 500 000 readers use the library resources and receive 5 million documents. Each day, about 1800—2000 scientists, specialists, post-graduate students and students visit the library. The readers are served in 16 specialised reading rooms of the main library complex, and 6 reading rooms that house collections of manuscripts, incunabula and rare books, prints and reproductions, music editions, Jewish manuscripts and the archives of the National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine.

The library serves governmental bodies such as Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine, the President’s administration and the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine. For these bodies the library also prepares reviews and analytical materials.

The library has more than 390 computers in use to serve readers by providing electronic information resources.

The library has more than 40 departments and centres, about 900 employees (70 % librarians, 17 % scientists, 13 % auxiliary staff).

CHAPTER V

1. Recollect the story. Answer the questions.

1. What did the Canterville ghost decide to do?
2. Why did he do that?
3. Was it a successful attempt?
4. How did the ghost feel after it?

2. Read the new words and their definitions. Learn them.

1. to be aware of to notice something, especially because you can see, hear, feel or smell it
2. ruff a stiff circular white collar, worn in the 16th century
3. to starch to make cloth stiff
4. to murmur to say something in a soft quiet voice so that it is difficult to hear clearly

3. Read the text and put its parts in the correct order.

- «It is absurd asking me to behave myself, quite absurd. I must rattle my chains, and groan through keyholes, and walk about at night, if that is what you mean. It is my only reason for existing.»
- «Stop!» cried Virginia. «It is you who are rude, and horrid, and vulgar, and as for dishonesty, you know you stole the paints out of my box to try and furbish up that ridiculous blood stain in the library. First you took all my red paints, then you took the emerald-green and the yellow ones, and finally I had nothing left but indigo, blue and white. I have never told on you. But who has ever heard of emerald-green blood?»
- «Starve you to death? Oh, Mr Ghost, I mean Sir Simon, are you hungry? I have a sandwich in my case. Would you like it?»
- «Good evening. I will go.»
- «It is very wrong to kill anyone», said Virginia.
- «Well, really», said the ghost, «what was I to do? It is a very difficult thing to get real blood nowadays, and, as your brother began it all with his Paragon Detergent, I certainly saw no reason why I should not have your paints».
- «Please don't go, Miss Virginia», he cried, «I am so lonely and so unhappy, and I really don't know what to do. I want to go to sleep and I cannot. I have not slept for three hundred years», he said sadly, and Virginia's beautiful blue eyes opened in wonder, «for three hundred years I have not slept, and I am so tired».

- «Oh! My wife was very careless, never had my ruffs properly starched and knew nothing about cookery. What do you know about it? However, it is no matter now, for it is all over, and I don't think it was very nice of her brothers to starve me to death, though I did kill her.»
- «No, thank you, I never eat anything now; but it is very kind of you and you are much nicer than the rest of your horrid, rude, vulgar, dishonest family.»
- «I am so sorry for you», she said, «but my brothers are going back to Eton tomorrow, and then, if you behave yourself, no one will annoy you.»
- «Poor, poor ghost», she murmured. Virginia's eyes filled with tears, and she hid her face in her hands.
- «It is no reason at all for existing, and you know you are very wicked that you have killed your wife.»
- «Well, I quite admit it», said the ghost, «but it was a family matter, and concerned no one else.»
- «You can help me.»
- A few days after this, Virginia and her curly-haired cavalier went out riding on Brockley meadows, where she tore her habit so badly in getting through a hedge, that, on her return home, she made up her mind to go up by the back staircase not to be seen. As she was running past the Tapestry Chamber, the door of which happened to be open, she looked into it and saw someone inside. She thought it was her mother's maid. But to her immense surprise it was the Canterville ghost himself! He was sitting by the window, watching the yellow trees. Little Virginia wanted to run away and lock herself in her room, but then she decided to talk to him. So light was her footfall, and so deep his melancholy that he was not aware of her presence till she spoke to him.
- Virginia grew quite grave, and her little lips trembled like rose leaves. She came towards him, and looked up into his old face.

4. You are Mrs (Mr) Otis and you have accidentally heard the dialogue between your daughter Virginia and the Canterville Ghost. Tell your partner about what you have heard using Indirect Speech.

Wildlife and Wild Flowers of Australia

1. Read the text and complete the table. Look at the pictures and name the flowers, animals and birds.

Australia's wildlife and wild flowers are not only more diverse than in other countries, but many of the species are unique. For example, the egg-laying mammals that take something from the reptiles and birds and the rest from warm-blooded creatures and two thirds of the world's marsupials can be found only in Australia and New Guinea.

The marsupials include the South American opossums, carnivorous Australian marsupials, omnivorous bandicoots and herbivorous opossums and kangaroos.

The most known Australian carnivorous marsupials are the unique insectivorous moles, Tasmanian tigers and Tasmanian devils.

One of the best-loved Australian herbivorous marsupials is the koala. Koalas eat only eucalyptus leaves that are toxic to most mammalia. They live and sleep on the branches of the eucalyptus trees, too, only coming down to move to another tree.

Australia's opossums form a large family of fruit and leaf-eating marsupials from the large opossums to the pygmy ones.

There are a lot of different kinds of kangaroos in Australia. The young kangaroos live in their mothers' pouches until they are quite large. There are also such exotic animals as echidnas, spiny ant-eaters or ant-bears and platypuses. Different kinds of bats, rodents are in Australia, too. The platypus is one of the world's strangest animals. It is a mammal but it lays eggs. It swims underwater to catch frogs, shellfish and worms on the bottom of rivers and streams. It has a bill and webbed feet, like a duck, thick, soft fur and a flat tail.

There are over a hundred species of snakes and many of them are extremely venomous. Fortunately some, like the beautiful pythons, aren't. Australian lizards are of all shapes and sizes from huge to tiny ones. The lizard with a blue tongue is a popular pet among the children of Australia. Frogs, turtles, crocodiles, dingos, bats are also well represented in the country. There are a lot of different birds in Australia: swans, by the way, they are black instead of white, the shy dancing lyrebirds, large, flightless birds — the emu and the cassowary. Both birds have huge bodies and long legs and are fast runners. The emu can run at speed up to 48 kilometres per hour. The cassowary lives in the tropical rain forest and is dangerous because it has very sharp claws. The emu lives in deserts, plains and forests. The beautiful budgerigars and other birds are also in Australia.

The flowers are as unusual as Australia's wildlife. Different kinds of orchids, sundews, kangaroo paws, wattle, and bottlebrushes are unique and very beautiful. There are also a lot of other wild flowers. Australia is an ancient land of the drab bush, the rain forests, and the multicoloured carpet of everlastings on the red desert sand after rain, the endless variety of wild flowers and the endless kilometres of sandy beaches.

Reading

4. Listen, read, look at the map of Great Britain and complete the table.

The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland is situated on the British Isles in the north-western part of Europe between the Atlantic Ocean and the North Sea. This group of islands consists of two large islands, Great Britain and Ireland, and 5,500 smaller islands around them.

The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland consists of England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. It is separated from the continent by the English Channel and the Strait of Dover. England is in the southern and central part of Great Britain. Scotland is in the north of the island. Wales is in the west. Northern Ireland is situated in the north-eastern part of Ireland.

In the west Great Britain is separated from Ireland by the Irish Sea and the North Channel.

There is no place in Britain which is more than 120 km from the sea. The seas surrounding the British Isles are shallow and often rough and difficult to navigate during the storms. But they are full of fish and important for trade.

There are no high mountains in Great Britain. Though Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are the countries of mountains and hills but they are not high.

Ben Nevis (1,343 m) is the highest point on the British Isles. It is in Scotland. The Cambrian Mountains are in Wales. The highest point of Wales is Mount Snowdon (1,085 m). In the centre of England there is a range of hills called the Pennine Chain. The highest point in England is Scafell Pike (978 m) and the highest point in Northern Ireland is Slieve Donard (850 m).

There are also beautiful gardens, meadows, fields, lakes and woods. The largest lakes are Lough Neagh in Northern Ireland and Loch Ness in Scotland. The mountains are very beautiful and Great Britain looks like a large park. This breathtaking natural beauty attracts tourists from all over the world.

There are many rivers in Great Britain but they aren't very long. They are deep and don't freeze in winter. The longest rivers are the Severn (220 miles) and the Thames (215 miles). The capital of the country — London — stands on the Thames. The rest of the rivers — the Avon, the Exe, the Mersey, the Tees and others are short.

England is the richest, the most fertile and the most populated part of Great Britain. There are mountains in the north and in the west of England, but the rest of the territory is a vast plain. In the north-western part of England there are many beautiful lakes. This part of the country is called Lake District.

Scotland is the land of mountains. The Highlands of Scotland are among the oldest mountains of the world. The chain of mountains in Scotland is called the Grampians with the highest peak Ben Nevis. The most important river of Scotland is the Clyde. Glasgow stands on it.

Another part of the UK is Wales. The landscape is beautiful. Many English people move to Wales when they retire. There are many castles there. Wales is a country of mountains. The highest peak of Wales is Snowdon. 6 % of Wales is covered with forest and much of the country is pastureland for sheep and cattle. The capital of Wales is Cardiff, the largest city of Wales. It is an important industrial city and a port.

Northern Ireland is situated in the north-eastern part of the island of Ireland. A striking feature of the northern coast is the Giant’s Causeway, a rock formation consisting of thousands of closely placed pillars of black basalt. The country consists mainly of low, flat plain. The most valuable natural resources of Northern Ireland are fertile soil and rich pasturelands. Natural waterpower is abundant. The capital and the largest city of Northern Ireland is Belfast.

There are no great forests on the British Isles today. The most famous forest is Sherwood Forest in the east of England, the house of Robin Hood, the famous hero of a number of legends. Many of the English and Scottish rivers are joined by canals, so that it is possible to travel by water from one end of Great Britain to the other.

The geographical position of Great Britain is rather good as the country lies on the crossways of the sea routes from Europe to other parts of the world. The sea connects Britain with most of the European countries such as Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway and other countries. The main sea route from Europe to America also passes through the English Channel.

Example: I have been to London.

Use the time words if you want to say that the action has finished or hasn't finished yet (already, never, recently, lately, just, ever).

Example: My friend has already read a lot of books about Great Britain. Have you ever visited the UK?

If you want to say that the action has never taken place, use these time words: never, not ... yet.

Example: We have never been to Great Britain.

SCOTLAND

In area Scotland is more than half as big as England. Its population is, however, only one-eighth as great. Scotland was an independent kingdom, often at war with England, until 1603. It had never been entirely conquered by the Romans, who advanced some distance into the Scottish territory, but for most of their four centuries in Britain remained mainly behind the great wall which they built in the reign of the Emperor Hadrian, to the south of the modern boundary.

In 1603 King James VI of Scotland became King James I of England, too, and from then onwards the countries were under the same monarch, though the Act of Union was not passed until 1707. This Act incorporated Scotland with England in the United Kingdom, but the Scots kept their own legal system, religion and administration and still keep them now. Thus Scotland has never been united with England in the same way as Wales.

The English language is spoken all over Scotland with a variety of regional accents, but all of these can be at once recognised as Scottish, with the vowels and consonants pronounced more nearly as written than in standard English or any of the regional accents of England.

- 1. Scotland is as big as England.
- 2. James I was the king of Scotland and England.
- 3. Scottish is spoken all over Scotland.
- 4. The English language is spoken everywhere in Scotland with a variety of regional accents, vocabulary and grammar.

1. Listen, read and say what this poem is about. Name the words you know. Name the words you can guess. Think of your own poem.

January brings the snow And makes our feet and fingers glow. February brings the rain, And thaws the frozen lakes again. March brings breezes loud and shrill And stirs the dancing daffodil. April brings the primrose sweet And scatters daisies at our feet. May brings flocks of pretty lambs, Skipping by their fleecy dams. June brings tulips, lilies, roses, Fills the children's hands with posies.	Hot July brings cooling showers, Apricots, sweet cherries and gillyflowers. August brings the sheaves of corn; Then the harvest home is born. Warm September brings the fruit, Hunters then begin to shoot. Fresh October brings the pheasant And to gather nuts is pleasant. Dull November brings the blast Then the leaves are whirling fast. Chill December brings the sleet, Blazing fire and Christmas treat.

Reading

5. Read the text. Four sentences have been removed from it. Choose from the sentences (a—d) the one which fits each gap (1—4). Read the text again and describe one of the seasons.

The climate of the British Isles is mild, temperate and very changeable.

This is because of the sea which keeps the island warm in winter and makes the air cool in summer. The mean annual temperature ranges from +8 °C to +11 °C. The mean monthly temperature in the North ranges from +3 °C in winter to +11 °C in summer.

2.

You can never have the same kind of weather for a long time. In spring sunshine and showers follow each other so often during the day that umbrellas or raincoats are things you need in Great Britain. You can leave your home in fine weather but get to school or your work in pouring rain. In spring the weather is generally mild but sometimes the days are cold. The summer isn't as hot as on the continent. The autumn is rainy but very beautiful. As for winter, sometimes it rains or it snows, and sometimes it's foggy or frosty.

3.

But the worst thing about the climate in Great Britain is the thick fog in autumn and winter, in London it is sometimes so thick that cars can be damaged.

March, April, May and June are the driest months and September, October, November, December and January are the wettest months. The English say, «We don't have a climate, we have only samples of weather».

The people can talk about the weather for hours.

- a. The climate is the main subject of conversation for the English.
- b. It is not very cold in winter and not very hot in summer.
- c. It often rains in Great Britain and the weather changes very often.
- d. The rivers and lakes are seldom covered with ice and the ice isn't thick enough to go skating.

Words to learn:

- sleet,
- blazing,
- treat,
- Annual Register,
- quiet,
- quiet colours,
- smoking affects the health,
- the old,
- pressure,
- financial pressure,
- blood pressure,
- uneasy,
- I feel uneasy,
- gloomy,
- gloomy weather,
- owing to.

6. Complete the sentences using can, may, might, must.

1. You _____ leave your home in fine weather but get to school or your work in pouring rain.
2. The weather in Great Britain _____ change at any moment.
3. In spring the weather _____ be mild in England.
4. In winter the weather _____ be rainy, snowy, frosty or foggy.
5. I'm going to visit England but the worst thing about the climate in Great Britain is the thick fog in autumn and winter. So it _____ be foggy in November.
6. As winter isn't very cold in Great Britain the rivers and lakes _____ be covered with ice but it isn't thick enough to go skating.
7. The weather is rainy and you _____ take an umbrella.

Spot on Using Can, May, Might, Must

If you want to talk about something possible, use the modal verb can.

Example: The English can talk about the weather for hours.

If you want to talk about something that is likely to happen, use the modal verbs may or might.

Example: The weather in the UK may change at any moment.

If you want to talk about something that is surely true, use the modal verb must.

Example: Oh, it's very cold today. It must be 25 degrees below zero.

7. Work in pairs. Discuss with your partner the weather you don't like and how you feel.

8. Work in pairs. Complete the mind map.

9. Match the numbers to the letters, then, join the sentences like in the example. Use such/so.

E.g. It was such wonderful weather that we went out every night.
The weather was so wonderful that we went out every night.

1. It was such wonderful weather.	a. He spent most of the time diving and swimming.
2. The sandy beach was quiet.	b. I spent a lot of time on it.
3. It was an absolutely marvellous day.	c. We were walking the whole day.
4. The weather was cold and rainy.	d. We went out every night.
5. The weather was warm.	e. She stayed in a hotel.

10. Work in pairs. Describe the seasons in the photographs. You should talk for one minute about each. After that answer these questions.

- 1. What are the typical weather samples?
- 2. What do you think of the weather?
- 3. What role does the weather play in your life?

11. Read the text and say if bad weather affects your mood.

Have you ever thought that bad weather can affect your mood? Doctors say that some people get depressed in winter, especially if these winters are long and dark. Even for some people those dark cold winter days cause real medical problems. And in autumn and spring when the weather is bad people feel depressed and anxious, too, especially the old. The old have problems with heart and blood pressure. Owing to the storm or gloomy weather some people feel frightened, scared or uneasy. But if the weather is fine people are in a good mood, they feel happy, refreshed, cheerful, excited, joyful or delighted.

12. Name the adjectives which suit best describing how you feel.

Bad mood: miserable,
 Good mood: joyful,

13. Read the poem and say if you can be happy walking in the woods or doing something. Can you be happy just now and here?

The wood of flowers

I went to the wood of flowers
 (No one was with me).
 I was there alone for hours
 I was happy as could be
 In the woods of flowers.
 There was grass on the ground,
 There were buds on the tree,
 And a wind had a sound of such gaiety,
 That I was as happy
 As happy could be,
 In the woods of flowers.

James Stephens

gaiety ['geɪəti] noun — веселість

Appearance

- Conservative dress is still very important for both men and women.
- Dark suits, usually black, blue, or grey, are quite acceptable.
- Men’s shirts should not have pockets; if they do, the pockets should always be kept empty. Additionally, men should wear solid or patterned ties, while avoiding striped ties.
- Men wear laced shoes, not loafers.
- Businesswomen are not as limited to colours and styles as men are, though it is still important to maintain a conservative image.

Behaviour

- Always be punctual in England. Arriving a few minutes early for safety is acceptable.
- Decision-making is slower in England than in the United States; therefore it is unwise to rush the English into making a decision.
- A simple handshake is the standard greeting (for both men and women) for business occasions and for visiting a home.
- Privacy is very important to the English. Therefore asking personal questions or intensely staring at another person should be avoided.
- Eye contact is seldom kept during British conversations.
- To signal that something is to be kept confidential or secret, tap your nose.
- Personal space is important in England, and one should maintain a wide physical space when conversing. Furthermore, it is considered inappropriate to touch others in public.
- Gifts are generally not part of doing business in England.
- When socialising after work hours, do not bring up the subject of work.

Greeting Etiquette in Britain

The handshake

A handshake is the most common form of greeting among the English and British people and is customary when you are introduced to somebody new.

The kiss

It is only when you meet friends, whom you haven't seen for a long time, that you would kiss the cheek of the opposite sex! In Britain one kiss is generally enough.

Formal greetings

The usual formal greeting is «How do you do?» and a firm handshake, but with a lighter touch between men and women.

And the correct response is to repeat «How do you do?». You say this when shaking hands with someone. «How are you?» is a question and the most common and polite response is «I am fine, thank you. And you?». You may also say:

«Nice to meet you.» — «Nice to meet you, too.» (Often said whilst shaking hands).

«Delighted to meet you.» — «Delighted to meet you, too.»

«Pleased to meet you.» — «Pleased to meet you, too.»

«Glad to meet you.» — «Glad to meet you, too.»

Informal greetings

Good morning/Good afternoon/Good evening.

Hi! — Hi! or Hello!

Morning/Afternoon/Evening.

How are you? — Fine, thanks and you?/Thanks./Cheers.

We sometimes say «cheers» instead of «thank you». You may hear «cheers» said instead of «good bye».

Body language

Gestures of hands

Our gestures greatly support our words. Since ancient times an open palm has been associated with sincerity and honesty. People usually swear with the palm on their heart. In the court, while witnessing, people raise the right hand with an open palm. So, when you see a person with two open palms it means «I am absolutely sincere with you».

Generally there are basic positions of the palm: a palm up is a gesture of trust or asking, a palm down means that you order something, the pointing finger shows aggressiveness. When you rub your palms you expect something positive.

Two hands crossed on the chest show that a person either disagrees with something or is trying to protect himself. When the thumbs of the hands crossed on the chest are up the person is self-confident. Hands on your waist show firmness. Interlocked fingers are used by a person to show distrust or hide negative attitude. People often cross their legs when they are worried or try to protect themselves. By this position Americans can show their disagreement. When both hands and legs are crossed a person is not going to listen to what you are saying any longer.

Gestures connected with touching face

When a person covers the mouth with his hand it means he is telling a lie. Touching a nose has the same meaning. The gesture of scratching or touching one's ear is caused by the desire not to hear something. Children completely cover their ears. A person scratches his neck — usually five times — when he doubts. When a person puts his fingers or a pen, pencil into his mouth he is depressed. When a listener supports his head with his hand it means that he is bored. If your interlocutor bends his head to his shoulder he is interested in what you are saying. When he bends his head to the chest he shows disapproval. When a person hides his eyes he is not telling the truth.

Spot on the Articles

An article is a piece of writing usually published in a newspaper, magazine, leaflet or on the Internet. They often have a semi-formal style and a friendly or neutral tone.

The main purpose of an article is to express an opinion or to describe a person/place/event/experience or to provide information, make a suggestion, give advice or recommend something.

Articles use a number of different techniques to grab the readers' attention and keep their interest such as:

- an eye-catching title;
- using a wide range of vocabulary;
- vivid description;
- a variety of adjectives.

An article should consist of:

- an interesting title;
- an introduction which clearly presents the topic;
- a main body of two or more paragraphs which develops the theme;
- a conclusion which summarises the main points and/or restates an opinion.

14. Read the example of an article. Decide which parts are an introduction, a main body, a conclusion.

A Rainbow World

Of all the colours in the world, I like the colour blue the most. You only have to look around to see that blue is everywhere: the sky, the sea, a bird, a flower, our eyes and even our clothes. In fact, without the colour blue our world would be very dull.

Blue is not only a cool, comfortable colour. The colour blue can be found in many shades and tones. Every shade of blue can have a different effect on a person and remind us of different places and things. A bright blue sky can make anyone feel happy.

For many people, colour can be linked to culture. For some cultures the colour blue represents a quiet, relaxing place. Other cultures associate the colour with wedding traditions and say blue brings the bride good luck.

Whatever the reasons, most people have a favourite colour. For me, it is simple. Blue makes me feel calm and relaxed. Whatever your favourite colour is, there is no doubt life would be boring without it. As Oscar Wilde said, «Colour can speak to the soul in a thousand different ways».

15. Homework. Write an article to «Language and Culture» magazine about one of the most important, in your opinion, languages in the world.

«They mean», he said sadly, «that you must weep for me for my sins, because I have no tears, and pray with me for my soul, because I have no faith, and then, if you have always been sweet, and good, and gentle, the Angel of Death will take mercy on me. You will see fearful shapes in darkness, and wicked voices will whisper in your ear, but they will not harm you, for against the purity of a little child the powers of Hell cannot prevail».

Virginia made no answer, and the ghost wrung his hands in wild despair as he looked down at her golden head. Suddenly she stood up, very pale, and with a strange light in her eyes. «I am not afraid», she said firmly, «and I will ask the Angel to take mercy on you».

He rose from his seat with a faint cry of joy. He took her hand with old-fashioned grace and kissed it.

On the green carpet on the wall were little huntsmen. They blew their horns and with their tiny hands waved to her to go back. «Go back! Little Virginia», they cried, «go back!»

Horrible animals with lizard tails and goggle eyes blinked at her from the carven chimney piece, and murmured «Beware! Little Virginia, beware!»

They reached the end of the room where the ghost stopped, and muttered some words, and she saw the wall slowly fading away like a mist, and a great black cavern in front of her. A bitter cold wind swept round them, and she felt something pulling at her dress. «Quick, quick», cried the ghost, «or it will be too late», and, in a moment, the wall had closed behind them, and the room was empty.

1. Virginia wasn't afraid.
2. There was an old prophecy on the bedroom window.
3. The girl didn't know the meaning of it.
4. The ghost was waiting nervously for her answer.
5. Finally, Virginia refused to help him.
6. Nobody tried to stop her in her decision.
7. The ghost disappeared and the room was empty.

4. Read the old prophecy. Work in groups and translate it. Present the translations to your classmates.

When a golden girl can win
Prayer from out the lips of sin,
When the barren almond bears,
And a little child gives away the tears,
Then shall all the house be still
And peace come to Canterville.

Rivers and Lakes

1. Answer the questions.

1. What do you know about the rivers and lakes of Australia?
2. Which continent is the driest on our planet?
3. Have you ever been to Australia?
4. Do you want to get new information about Australia?

2. Read the text and complete the sentences.

Australia, known as the driest continent, has less rain than any other continent except Antarctica. Half of the continent has an annual rainfall of less than 250 mm and the third part of it is so dry that it's almost uninhabitable. A huge part of Australia has virtually no rivers and the lakes are salt pans because of an exceptional little amount of rain.

Most of the Australian rivers disappear in the hot dry month of the year and only the Murray — Darling River system ranks as a major river.

But to the east of the continent on the well-watered slopes of the Great Divide there are many rivers. Some of them, especially the wild rivers of Tasmania, are ideal for canoeing or rafting. Others are calmer and attract visitors who enjoy fishing, swimming, bushwalking or simply gazing at the picturesque scenery.

Many of the Australian most beautiful waterfalls are found in national parks: Kakadu's Twin Falls and Jim Jim Falls, Fitzroy Falls, Russel Falls, Hogarth Falls and others.

The lakes in this dry land, to a great surprise, are of different sizes and forms: shallow coastal lakes and marshes, crater lakes, the tarns and small glacial lakes of the Tasmanian highlands. The calm beauty of the big lakes like Pedder and St Clair is fascinating. They all are very beautiful. The conservationists have saved these Tasmania's rivers and lakes for future generations.

The Geographical Position of Ukraine

1. First read, then listen and if you can you may sing. Have you guessed what country we are going to talk about? Name it.

National Anthem

Ukraine has not perished, neither its glory nor freedom,
 Upon us, fellow Ukrainians, fate will smile once more.
 Our enemies will vanish, like dew in the morning sun,
 And we, too, will rule, brothers on a free land of our own.
 We'll lay down our souls and bodies to gain our freedom,
 And we'll show that we, brothers, are of the Kazak nation.
 We'll lay down our souls and bodies to gain our freedom,
 And we'll show that we, brothers, are of the Kazak nation.

The Geographical Position of Ukraine

Ukraine is situated in the eastern part of Europe. It borders on Russia in the east, Belarus in the north, Poland, Slovakia, Hungary in the west and Romania, Moldova in the south. Ukraine is washed by the Sea of Azov and the Black Sea in the south. The area of Ukraine is 603,628 sq km.

There are the Carpathians in the west. The Carpathians are extremely picturesque with large grassy pasture and clear rivers running between rocky banks.

2.

The territory of our country has a variety of landscapes as it lies in three main zones: mixed forests, forest-steppes and steppes. There is a narrow subtropical zone in the south.

The nature of Ukraine is especially beautiful due to rivers and lakes. There are two big lakes: Synevyr and Svitiaz and more than 130 rivers. The biggest of the Ukrainian rivers is the Dnipro which is famous in Ukrainian history and literature.

Other major rivers in Ukraine are the Dnister, the Donets and the Buh. The north-western part of the country, the Polissia district of Ukraine, is an area of mixed forests and many lakes and rivers. It is in the Prypyat river basin but a great part of it is contaminated after the Chernobyl catastrophe.

Ukrainian nature is diverse and beautiful. We can find almost all kinds of trees, bushes, flowers and herbs in Ukraine.

In the Carpathians there are beeches, pine trees, different kinds of fir trees, planes, larches, hornbeams.

And it goes without saying that there are a lot of fruit trees everywhere in Ukraine. And we don't forget about chestnut trees in Kyiv.

As for animals we can see bears, wild boars, foxes, elks, beavers, hares, wolves, deer, roe deer and many others in the forest, hares, moles, field mice, gophers and other animals in the steppe zone and different birds: swallows, tomtits, crows, sparrows, pigeons, larks, woodpeckers, storks, magpies and many, many others everywhere.

A lot of them live in towns and cities.

By the way, many plants, birds and animals are in the Red Book now, they are disappearing because of the bad ecology. So, our aim is to preserve them for future generations.

11. Work in groups. Think of the most important and interesting facts you know about Ukraine (zone, animals, trees, birds, etc.). Choose one, write about it as much as possible and present it to the classmates.

1. Listen. Find and read the lines of the poem that contain the main words. Give your reasons why you think so.

What a Wonderful World

I see green trees, red roses, too.
 I see them bloom for me and you.
 I see blue skies and clouds of white,
 The bright blessed day, the dark sacred night.
 The colours of the rainbow so pretty in the sky
 Are also in the faces of the people going by.
 I see friends shaking hands, saying «How do you do?».
 They are really saying «I love you».
 I hear babies' crying, I watch them grow.
 They'll learn much more that I'll never know.
 And I think to myself, «What a wonderful world».

Reading

4. Work in pairs. Read the text and tell your partners about the climatic zone of Ukraine you like most of all.

Ukraine is divided into four main zones: mixed forests, forest-steppes, steppes and a subtropical zone in the south.

The climate of Ukraine is temperate continental being subtropical only on the southern coast. The average temperature in January is 7 degrees below zero. The average temperature in July is 17 degrees above zero. But sometimes in winter the temperature is 20—25 degrees below zero.

The climate in the south differs from that on the main territory. The winter temperature is about 4 degrees above zero and the average temperature in summer is about 22 degrees above zero. There are a lot of evergreen plants there. This is a favourite place for rest because of its weather and nature. The most famous resorts and tourists centres are here.

The northern part of Ukraine belongs to the mixed forest zone. The summer is long and warm, the winter is snowy but not very severe. There are many rivers, lakes and forests there.

This part of Ukraine is rich in berries: bilberries, red bilberries, wild strawberries, and in trees: oak trees, pine trees, birches, limes, beeches, hornbeams. The meadows are covered with different types of herbs and flowers. The spring flowers are the most beautiful ones: white snowdrops, lilies of the valley, violets.

We can see a lot of animals: foxes, squirrels, hares, hedgehogs, badgers, bison, muskrats and also birds: ducks, gulls, cuckoos, starlings, woodpeckers, storks, sparrows, swallows and lots more.

Then the forest-steppe zone begins. There are vast areas of land with grass and without great woods: rich black soil, green meadows, groves, oak groves, parks and gardens. The most popular trees are oak trees, beeches, hornbeams, limes and maples.

It is much warmer here than in the mixed forest zone but there is also less water and moisture.

In the steppes the summer is very hot and dry with frequent droughts. The winter is very cold and not very snowy. In spring when there is enough moisture on the ground the steppe is covered with flowers: tulips, forget-me-nots, violets and many others. It looks like a beautiful colourful carpet.

In spite of very hot and dry summer there are a lot of birds, insects and animals here. Not only plants but also most animals have adjusted to the life in the steppes. Larks and quails, eagles and owls, ducks and snipes, field mice and hamsters, foxes and wolves, butterflies and beetles, bees and bumblebees live in the steppes.

Vast areas are occupied by gardens, orchards, vineyards and melon fields. In the steppe zone there is one of the biggest National Parks of Ukraine. It is Askania-Nova. It is a unique park not only in Ukraine but in the whole of Europe.

We can see animals from all parts of the world: bison, deer, zebras, llamas, antelopes, Przhevalskyi horses, ostriches, flamingoes, ducks and many others.

The southern coastline is a picturesque corner of Ukraine. We can find the signs of almost all climatic zones of our planet. The winter on the coastline is short, humid and warm. The snow doesn't stay long in the mountains. It melts quickly, filling small rivers with water. The summer is long, hot and dry. The coastline is rich in different kinds of plants and trees: hornbeams, oak trees, beeches, fir trees, junipers,

Speaking

6. Listen, act out the dialogue and discuss in class if it is really worth visiting our Motherland. Give your reasons.

- Hi, Jack! Haven't seen you for ages! Where have you been this summer?
- Hello, everybody! You are wondering what country I have been to. Well, it's Ukraine.
- Oh, you've told a lot about it. Your friend Nataalka lives there.

— Yes, you're right. But this summer I've travelled through all the country. You can't imagine what I've seen.

Soaring mountains with woody hillsides, waterfalls and mountain rivers, skiing resorts and mineral water sources in the Carpathians, golden sandy beaches, endless steppes, rare historical sights, wonderful parks and gardens, wide fields and meadows, different trees and animals, natural reserves in the central part of Ukraine and at last the fantastic atmosphere, Ukrainian hospitality and cosy restaurants with delicious national cuisine everywhere. It's something unbelievable.

- Lucky you are!
- Really I am. If you want to be impressed greatly, visit Ukraine. It goes without saying it's worth visiting it.

7. Read the joke and say if you know about climate as «much» as the boy does. Perhaps you really know much more about the climate of your country. Do you know any jokes?

Heat and Cold

A class of physics at school. The teacher asked the pupils, «Now, who can tell me anything about heat and cold?» A small boy held up his hand and said, «Heat makes things larger, sir, and cold makes things smaller». «All right. Give an example, please.» «In summer days are longer because it is hot, and in winter they are shorter because it is cold», answered the boy.

8. Work in groups. Write down the things that four climatic zones have in common and their differences.

9. Project work. Make a guidebook for tourists about your favourite climatic zone. Add some more interesting facts. You may work alone, in pairs or in groups.

Ukraine

by Vasyl Symonenko

You may choose a friend and a brother
But you can never choose your native land!
You may choose everything in the world
But you can never choose your Motherland!

Beautiful, generous is your native land.
And the language is like a nightingale.
Love, respect and take care of everything
That is called — Ukraine!

Можна вибрати друга і по духу брата.
Та не можна матір рідну вибирати.
Можна все на світі вибирати, сину.
Вибрати не можна тільки Батьківщину!

Красивий, щедрий, рідний край!
І мова наша солов'їна,
Люби, шануй, оберігай
Усе, що зветься Україна!

The population of Ukraine

The population of Ukraine is more than 42 million people (68 % of the population is urban and 32 % is rural). About 32 million people live in towns and cities, and about 15 million people live in the country.

Ukraine is inhabited by representatives of 128 nations, nationalities and ethnic minorities. Not only Ukrainians live in our country, there are also Russians, Byelorussians, Moldavians, Jews, Greeks, Tartars, Rumanians, Poles, Armenians, Germans, Hungarians, Gypsies and other ethnic minorities.

About 20 % of population are Russians. There are many Ukrainians living outside Ukraine. Ukrainians live in the USA, Canada, Poland, France, England, Argentina, Brazil, Australia and many other countries. There are a lot of Ukrainian organisations and different institutions abroad.

From time immemorial the Ukrainians are known as hard-working, kind-hearted, friendly, hospitable and well-wishing to all the people. But when the time of ordeal comes they become determined, resourceful, brave, ready for self-sacrifice. They have a sense of humour.

7. Listen and read the poem to refresh in your mind the degrees of comparison. Translate. Do you agree with James Reeves that «shame is louder, hunger is sharper, sin is heavier and love is deeper»?

O, what is louder than a horn?
 And what is sharper than a thorn?
 What is heavier than the lead?
 And what is better than the bread?
 O, what is higher than the tree?
 And what is deeper than the sea?
 O, shame is louder than a horn,
 And hunger is sharper than a thorn,
 And sin is heavier than the tree,
 And love is deeper than the sea.

... Last year I started learning Ukrainian. It's a very difficult language but I'm trying my best. I'd like to come to Ukraine one day to practise it. ...

- Which season would you recommend for the trip?
- What places are worth seeing in Ukraine?
- What region would you recommend to visit, why?

11. Homework.

Project Suggestions: 7 Wonders of Ukraine

End Product: the poster with the results of the survey.

- Make up a group.
- Everyone should interview his parents, teachers asking what they think to be 7 wonders of Ukraine.
- Sum up the survey results, then choose the best wonder and decide how to present it.
- Issue the poster.

It's interesting to know

The westernmost point is the city of Chop in Transcarpathia. The largest mountain system is the Ukrainian Carpathian Mountains, which are part of the Eastern Carpathians. The mountains stretch to the west within the territories of the Transcarpathia, Lviv, Ivano-Frankivsk and Chernivtsi regions.

The highest mountain peak, Hoverla, is in the Ukrainian Carpathians. The total area of the Black Sea is above 482 thousand square km and the maximum depth reaches 2245 m, average — 1271 m.

125 rivers have a length of over 100 km, almost 4 thousand — over 10 km. The most dense river system exists in the Ukrainian Carpathians and the least dense — in the southern regions.

The Dnipro is the third largest river in Europe, beginning on the Valdai highland and running into the Black Sea. Its length within Ukraine is 981 km and the whole length — 2201 km.

The deepest lake is Svitiaz in the basin of the Southern Buh. It is one of the Shatsk Lakes in Volyn.

12. Answer the questions.

CHAPTER VII

1. Recollect the story. Discuss in class.

1. What were Virginia and the Canterville ghost talking about?
2. Read your variant of the prophecy.
3. What did Virginia promise to do for the ghost?

2. Read the new words and their definitions. Learn them.

- | | |
|-------------------|--|
| 1. pond | a small area of fresh water that is smaller than a lake, that is either natural or artificially made |
| 2. shrill | a very high and unpleasant sound |
| 3. casket | a small decorated box in which you keep jewellery |
| 4. wing | a part of building |
| 5. withered plant | a plant that has become drier and smaller and is dead or dying |

3. Read the text and match the two parts of the sentences.

About ten minutes later, the bell rang for tea, and, as Virginia did not come down, Mrs Otis sent up one of the footmen to tell her. After a little time he returned and said that he could not find Miss Virginia anywhere. As she was in the habit of going out to the garden every evening to get flowers for the dinner table, Mrs Otis was not at all alarmed at first, but when six o'clock struck, and Virginia did not appear, she became really agitated, and sent the boys out to look for her. At half past six the boys came back and said that they could find no trace of their sister anywhere. They were all now in the greatest state of excitement, and did not know what to do, when Mr Otis suddenly remembered that, some days before, he had given a band of gypsies permission to camp in the park. The gypsies were caught on meadows, but she was not with them.

The pond was dragged, and the whole Chase thoroughly searched, but without any result. It was evident that, for that night at any rate, Virginia was lost to them. Mr Otis ordered up supper for the whole family. It was a melancholy meal, and even the twins were silent, as they were very fond of their sister. It was midnight.

Just as they were passing out of the dining room, they heard a sudden shrill cry; a dreadful peal of thunder shook the house, strains of unearthly music floated through the air, a panel at the top of the staircase flew back with a loud noise, and looking very pale and white, with a little casket in her hand, stepped Virginia. In a moment they had all rushed up to her. Mrs Otis clasped her passionately in her arms, and the twins executed a wild war dance round the group.

«Good heavens! Child, where have you been?» said Mr Otis, rather angrily, thinking that she had played some foolish trick on them. While Mrs Otis was kissing the trembling child.

«Papa», said Virginia quietly, «I was with the ghost. He is dead. He was really sorry for all that he had done, and he had given me this box of beautiful jewels before he died».

The whole family gazed at her in amazement, but she was serious and turning round, she led them through the opening in the narrow secret corridor. Washington was following them with a lighted candle. Finally, they came to a great oak door. When Virginia opened it they found themselves in a little low room.

«Hallo!» suddenly exclaimed one of the twins, who was looking out of the window to discover in what wing of the house the room was situated. «Hallo! the old withered almond tree has blossomed. I can see the flowers in the moonlight.»

«God has forgiven him», said Virginia.

«What an angel you are!»

4. Think of the end of the story. Give your ideas.

CHAPTER VIII

1. Read the new words and their definitions. Learn them.

1. mourner someone who attends a funeral
2. to render to give help to something or someone or do something, because it is your duty or because someone expects you to
3. indebted grateful to someone for their help
4. coronet a small crown
5. to owe to feel that you should do something for someone
6. to blush to become red, usually because you are embarrassed or ashamed

2. Recollect the story and put these events in the correct order. What time did each event take place?

1. When _____ struck, and Virginia did not appear, Mrs Otis became really agitated, and sent the boys out to look for her.
2. They all could see that the old withered almond tree had blossomed.
3. At _____ the boys came back and said that they could find no trace of their sister anywhere.
4. Finally, they came to a great oak door. When Virginia opened it they found themselves in a little low room.
5. Virginia did not come down when the bell rang for tea and Mrs Otis sent up one of the footmen to tell her.
6. It was _____ when they heard a sudden shrill cry and Virginia stepped.

3. Read the text and say if the statements are T (true) or F (false). Correct the false statements.

Four days after these curious incidents a funeral started from Canterville Chase at about eleven o'clock at night. By the side of the hearse and the coaches the servants walked with lighted torches, and the whole procession was wonderfully impressive. Lord Canterville was the chief mourner, having come up specially from Wales to attend the funeral, and sat with little Virginia, then the United States' Minister and his wife, then Washington and three boys, and in the last carriage there was Mrs Umney. A deep grave was dug in the corner of the churchyard, just under the old yew tree, and the service was read in the most impressive manner. When the ceremony was over Virginia stepped forward and laid a large cross made of white and pink almond blossoms. As she did so, the moon came out from behind a cloud.

The next morning, before Lord Canterville went up to the town, Mr Otis had to talk to him on the subject of the jewels the ghost had given to Virginia. They were perfectly magnificent; especially a certain ruby necklace of the sixteenth-century.

But Lord Canterville pulling his grey moustache said, «My dear sir, your charming little daughter has rendered my unlucky ancestor, Sir

Simon, a very important service, and my family and I are much indebted to her for her marvellous courage and pluck. The jewels are hers». Virginia received the coronet, which was the reward of all good little American girls. She married a handsome boy. They were both so charming, and they loved each other so much that everyone was delighted with them. Mr Otis was extremely fond of the young Duke personally.

The Duke and Duchess, after the honeymoon was over, went down to Canterville Chase, and on the day after their arrival they walked to the lonely churchyard. The Duchess brought with her some lovely roses. There the Duchess sat down on a fallen pillar, while her husband was sitting at her feet smoking a cigarette and looking up at her beautiful eyes. Suddenly he threw his cigarette away, took her by the hand, and said to her, «Virginia, a wife should have no secrets from her husband». «Dear Cecil! I have no secrets from you». «Yes, you have», he answered, smiling, «you have never told me what happened to you when you were locked up with the ghost». «I have never told anyone, Cecil», said Virginia. «I know that, but you might tell me». «Please, don't ask me, Cecil, I cannot tell you. Poor Sir Simon! I owe him. Yes, don't laugh, Cecil, I really do. He has made me see what Life is, and what Death signifies, and why Love is stronger than both». The Duke rose and kissed his wife lovingly. «You can have your secret as long as I have your heart», he murmured. «You have always had that, Cecil». «And you will tell our children some day, won't you?» he said and Virginia blushed.

1. Four days after these curious incidents a funeral started from Canterville Chase at about twelve o'clock at night.
2. Lord Canterville, Virginia, the United States' Minister and his wife, Washington and the three boys, Mrs Umney were present at the ceremony.
3. An emerald necklace of the sixteenth-century was among the jewels the ghost had given to Virginia.
4. Mr Otis wanted to give the jewels to Lord Canterville and he agreed to take them back.
5. Virginia married a handsome boy. They were both so charming, and they loved each other very much.
6. The Duke and Duchess, after the honeymoon was over, didn't go to Canterville Chase.
7. Virginia didn't have secrets from her husband Cecil and told him her story.

4. Choose one of the characters of the story and write your impressions of everything that happened to this person in Canterville Chase.

The Cities

I. Read the text, name the main cities of Australia and complete the table.

Canberra is the national capital of Australia. The gardens and parks are at least as important as buildings in this city. Canberra is very beautiful. It is a garden city with sweeping harmonious curves and circles. It is famous for its fine National Gallery, High Court Building, New Parliament House and many other places of interest.

Sydney is the oldest and largest of Australia's cities. It was founded in 1788 by the convicts and soldiers who had come to establish a penal colony. It is famous for its Opera House, Harbour Bridge and Tower. Sydney Harbour is one of the loveliest in the world. The city centre is modern. Sydney is a tourist's paradise where every taste is catered for.

Unlike Sydney Melbourne is one of the few major Australian cities founded as a free settlement rather than a penal centre. Melbourne is the centre for banking, commerce, industry and defence. It is the cultural centre of the country, too. Its wide streets, impressive Victorian buildings, bridges, the skyline over the Yarra River and graceful parks and gardens attract tourists from all over the world.

Hobart, the second oldest city in Australia, is the capital of the island state of Tasmania. It was founded in 1804. The city isn't large. It is situated on the banks of the blue Derwent River beneath Mount Wellington. The city is famous for its historic buildings.

There are other cities in Australia. They are Adelaide, the cultural centre with its Art Festivals, Perth, the only city on the western coast situated on the lovely Swan River, Darwin, with the most diverse population, Brisbane, with its parks, gardens and forest reserves, where there are a lot of tropical flowers and fruit.

II. Fill in the map of Australia.

III. Project work. Choose the city you like most of all and find some more information about it. Present your project to the class. You may work alone, in pairs or in groups.

The People

I. Look at the picture and try to name all the nationalities you can see in it.

II. Read the text and name the nationalities of the people which are mentioned in the text, like in the example after the text.

Some people say the Australian population has always been made up of migrants. But the first Australians were the Aboriginal people and only later the population was made up of the migrants of different nationalities. At first the Aborigines outnumbered Europeans by more than 300 to 1, but soon it was changed greatly. In 1828 the non-Aboriginal population grew and almost half of them were convicts.

A lot of people came to Australia. They were the Chinese, Canadians, Welsh, French, Russians, Spanish, Italians, Maltese, Scots, Swedes, Norwegians, British and many others. Most migrants continued to come from Britain.

After the Second World War the Maltese, Dutch, Italians, Germans, Danes, Hungarians, Spanish, Ukrainians came either as assisted migrants or under special schemes, but the Aborigines continued to live badly. By 1978 they made up only one per cent of the population though the Australian government provides equal opportunities for all racial groups and encourages the maintenance of different cultural heritages within Australia.

III. Answer the questions.

- Who were the first Australians?
- What countries did the migrants come to Australia from?
- What happened after their coming to Australia?
- Does the Australian government provide equal opportunities for all racial groups?

We use a/an to say what kind of thing something or somebody is, what job a person does and in description. We use a before a consonant and an before a vowel. But it depends on the pronunciation of the word, not the spelling. A/an has no plural. We don't use a/an with uncountable nouns, or possessives.

A dog, a bag, an orange, an hour, an uncle, a union, rain, grass, butter, sugar, my friend.

In the plural we use some or no article. We use some/any to talk about indefinite, not very large numbers or amounts — when we don't know exactly how much/how many. We use no article when we aren't thinking about numbers/amounts at all.

I have bought some books. (It isn't clear how many).

I like books. (No idea of numbers).

After kind of or sort of, a/an is usually dropped.

What kind of tree is it?

In exclamations with what, a/an is not dropped.

What a pity!

We use a/an after quite, rather and such.

It is such a nice flower!

The means that you know which one/ones we mean.

I bought a book about animals yesterday. The book is very interesting (the book I have told you about — you know which one).

Please, give me the red pen (you can see which one).

Look at the girls in the corner of the room (you know which ones).

We use the with superlatives.

He is the best pupil in our class.

Kyiv is the most beautiful city in the world.

We don't use the in generalisations with plural and uncountable nouns.

I like music.

I don't like reading newspapers.

We can use the in generalisations with singular countable nouns when we talk about a whole class of things.

The tiger is in danger.

I can't play the guitar.

I don't go to the theatre. I like the cinema.

Who invented the radio?

We use the with the names of seas, oceans, rivers, deserts, some mountains and countries, hotels, cinemas and theatres.

Countries: the United States, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Seas, oceans, rivers, deserts: the Dnipro, the Thames, the Sahara Desert, the Atlantic Ocean, the Black Sea.

Mountains: the Alps, the Carpathians, the Himalayas.

Hotels, cinemas and theatres: the Ukraina Cinema, the Ritz, the Kyiv hotel.

No articles with:

Continents, most countries: Africa, Ukraine, France, Germany.

States: Texas, California.

Towns: Kyiv, London, Paris, New York, Tokyo.

Lakes, most mountains: Everest, Lake Svitiaz, Lake Superior.

Most streets: Khreshchatyk Street, Oxford Street, Fifth Avenue.

We don't use articles in expressions after prepositions such as:

to/at/from school, work, college;

at/from home;

to/in(to) prison, bed;

to/in(to)/from town;

to/at/after breakfast, lunch, etc.;

on holiday;

on Monday, Tuesday, etc.;

at Easter, Christmas, etc.;

at night (but in the morning/afternoon/evening);

in spring, winter, etc.;

by car/bus/train (but on foot), on TV.

Grammar

The possessive case

We add — 's to singular nouns: my sister's toy, Tania's ball.

We add — ' to plural nouns: my teachers' books, my parents' house.

We add — 's to irregular plurals: the children's toys, the women's dresses.

Grammar

Pronouns

We use possessive adjectives (my, his, her, its, our, your, their) to replace a noun in a sentence:

This is Jack's car. It's his car.

These are children's books. These are their books.

We use possessive pronouns (mine, his, hers, its, ours, yours, theirs) to replace possessive adjectives and nouns.

These are my pencils.

They are mine.

This is my dog.

It is mine.

It is our flat.

It's ours.

We use the verb belong to to describe your possession.

These toys belong to me.

That bag belongs to him.

This house belongs to them.

Personal pronouns	Possessive adjectives	Possessive pronouns	Object pronouns	Reflexive pronouns
I	My	Mine	Me	Myself
You	Your	Yours	You	Yourself
He	His	His	Him	Himself
She	Her	Hers	Her	Herself
It	Its	Its	It	Itself
We	Our	Ours	Us	Ourselves
You	Your	Yours	You	Yourselves
They	Their	Theirs	Them	Themselves

We use reflexive pronouns to emphasise the subject or object — to say «that person/thing and nobody/nothing else».

The flat itself is nice, but the kitchen is small.

It will be better if you do it yourself.

I'll do my homework myself.

Grammar

Plurals of nouns: spelling

We add -s to make the plurals of most nouns.

We add -es when nouns end in -ss, -sh, -ch, -s, -o, -x

If nouns end in a consonant + -y, we change -y into -i and add -es.

If nouns end in a vowel + -y, we don't change -y and add -s.

If nouns end in -f or -fe, we change -f, -fe into -ves.

Book — books, country — countries, boy — boys, hobby — hobbies, dress — dresses, watch — watches, knife — knives, potato — potatoes, thief — thieves.

Nouns with irregular plurals.

Grammar

Countable and uncountable nouns

Countable nouns have plurals and we use a/an with them.

A toy — toys a house — houses an apple — apples

Uncountable nouns have no plurals and we don't use a/an with them.

Water, bread, grass, weather, knowledge, music, friendship.

Grammar

Some and Any

Some means a certain number or amount of something.

Some is used mostly in affirmative sentences.

We also use some in questions when we expect people to say «Yes» in requests and offers.

Would you like some sugar? Yes.

We have got some butter and margarine.

There is some milk in the bottle.

There are some books on the table.

We use any instead of some in negative sentences and in most questions.

Are there any pictures in the classroom?

Is there any meat in the fridge?

Did you read any books last summer?

We haven't got any oranges in the fridge.

Grammar

Which and What

We use which when there is a limited choice.

We use what when there is a wide choice.

Sometimes both are possible.

Which apple do you want?

What pencil is yours?

Before of and one we use which, but not what.

Which of the films have you seen?

Look at these books. Which one would you like to buy?

When there is no noun, we use who for people, not which.

Who won that game?

Who is the best in swimming in your class?

Look at these roses. Which one is the best?

Grammar

Comparatives and superlatives

To make the comparative and superlative of one-syllable adjectives we add -er, -est.

Old — older — the oldest.

Young — younger — the youngest.

Tall — taller — the tallest.

Small — smaller — the smallest.

To make the comparative and superlative of two-syllable adjectives ending in -y we change -y into -i and add -er, -est.

Easy — easier — the easiest.

Happy — happier — the happiest.

To make the comparative and superlative of longer adjectives we add more, most.

Beautiful — more beautiful — the most beautiful.

Comfortable — more comfortable — the most comfortable.

Nervous — more nervous — the most nervous.

Irregular comparison

Good/well — better — the best.

Little — less — the least.

Bad — worse — the worst.

Much/many — more — the most.

Far — farther/further — the farthest/the furthest.

We can use double comparatives to say that things are changing.

It's getting hotter and hotter.

She is getting taller and taller.

Grammar

Question tags

The meaning of a question tag depends on how you say it.

A question tag with a falling intonation is a way of making a conversation by asking the listener to agree with the speaker. It isn't really a question at all.

You are going to school, aren't you?

You have got a bouquet of beautiful flowers, haven't you?

It was a wonderful day on the 1st of September last year, wasn't it?

You went to school at the age of six, didn't you?

A question tag with a rising intonation is more like a real question. It means «I think I'm right but can you confirm it for me?»

You will go to school tomorrow, won't you?

Our lessons are over at 12:00 today, aren't they?

You have passed your exams, haven't you?

She hasn't done her homework, has she?

To make a question tag repeat the main verb + a pronoun (it, he, she, you, they, we). If there is no main verb, use the auxiliary verbs do, does or did. If the first part of a question tag is positive then the second part of it will be negative.

If the first part of a question tag is negative, then the second part will be positive.

You don't go to school, do you?

You have never been to London, have you?

She has been to London twice, hasn't she?

You aren't going to learn the third foreign language, are you?

We form positive short answers using «Yes» + personal pronouns + auxiliary verbs.

1. You learn English, don't you? — Yes, I do.

2. You don't remember your first day at school, do you? — Yes, I do.

We form negative short answers using «No» + personal pronouns + negative auxiliary verbs.

They went to Scotland last year, didn't they? — No, they didn't.

She didn't bring the bouquet of flowers on the 1st of September, did she? — No, she didn't.

The question tag for I am is aren't I?

The question tag for Let's is shall we?

I'm a good pupil, aren't I?

Let's do our homework, shall we?

Grammar

Modal verbs

Can, could, be able to, would, be allowed to, shall, will

We use can to say that something is possible or that someone has the ability to do something.

We use should and ought to to give a piece of advice.

You should enter the university.

You shouldn't smoke.

You ought not to eat too much chocolate.

We can use should to ask for a piece of advice.

What should I do in this situation?

I don't think you should worry.

Grammar

Advice

Words frequently used with advice.

Adjectives: medical, practical, professional, expert.

Verbs: ask for, follow, give, get, ignore, need, offer, want, take, accept, receive.

Ways of giving advice:

If you want to give friendly advice use: you should; why don't you; if I were you; you ought to.

If you want to give stronger advice use: you'd better.

If you want to give advice based on your own experience use: take it from me.

Grammar

The Passive

We use the Passive when we are more interested in the action than the person who does it.

We often use the word by to show who does the action.

To form the Passive we use the correct form of the verb to be and the Past Participle.

The Present Simple

Active: My friend paints the walls of his room every year.

Passive: The walls of the room are painted every year.

The Past Simple

Active: My friend Painted the walls of his room last year.

TEXTS FOR LISTENING

DIVE 1-2

10. Listen to the conversation and tick the statements T (true) or F (false).

Paul: Hi, everyone. I'm Paul, and welcome to Summer Holiday Camp. Now, let's find out which sports you'd like to do. OK, and... you are?

Mike: Mike Ganger.

Paul: Right, Mike. Have you done any sports before?

Mike: Yes, I've played baseball — that's pretty exciting. And I've been cycling and mountain climbing, but only once.

Paul: Cycling and mountain climbing? When did you do that?

Mike: On my vacation in Switzerland, last year.

Paul: And what did you think of them?

Mike: Well, I really enjoyed cycling. But I didn't like mountain climbing very much.

Paul: So, if you had an opportunity what sport would you like to try?

Mike: Scuba diving. I haven't done that before. But some of my friends have done that and they say it is really great. I'd try my hand at boxing.

Paul: Right. And you're...?

Carmen: Carmen Diaz.

Paul: Carmen Diaz... er, I can't find your name.

Carmen: But I'm not...

Paul: Not in the list. OK. No problem. Have you done any of these sports, Carmen?

Carmen: Yes, but...

Paul: Like what?

Carmen: I've done all of them, lots of times, but...

Paul: And you liked them all!

Carmen: Yes, I did. But I'm not here...

Paul: OK. But surely is there anything you haven't done?

Carmen: No, I've done everything. Look, if you listen to me just for a second, you'll know that I'm not here on holiday. I'm the new instructor.

Paul: Oh?!

4. Listen to the interview with Dr Monday and say what it is about.

Presenter: Hello, Dr Monday, welcome to our «Sleeping Heads» programme.

Dr Monday: Hello, my dear friends. So, tell me if you slept well last night. Or did you wake up feeling exhausted? Getting a good night's sleep requires more than crawling into bed and closing your eyes. Understanding your sleep behaviour and preparing for a sound sleep can help make sure that every night is a good night for sleeping.

Presenter: I know that most teenagers need about 8—9 hours for a sleep each night. Unfortunately, most of them sleep just 6—7 hours.

Dr Monday: The researchers have found that people sleep better at different times during their daily cycle. For example, some people sleep better if they go to bed early and rise early, while others feel more rested if they stay up late and sleep in. Many people don't pay attention to the timing of their sleep.

Presenter: But the teenagers sleep in a different way from adults or children because the body's biological clock changes.

Dr Monday: Yes, these changes happen when teenagers' lives are very busy. They need to do well at school but they have things to do like sport and after-school clubs as well. And most schools start early.

Presenter: Dr Monday, but why is sleep important?

Dr Monday: Studies show that 20 % of pupils fall asleep in class. And the scientists say that because of the lost sleep pupils can feel bored and depressed.

Presenter: How can teenagers get more sleep?

Dr Monday: Take my advice into consideration.

- Avoid stimulants such as chocolate and coffee in the evening.
- Go to bed and wake up at the same time every day. Follow your routine even at the weekends.
- Finish exercising at least two hours before going to bed because it will be more difficult to fall asleep.
- Don't sleep in a hot room. Air your bedroom, turn down the temperature in it and close your curtains.
- Get a sleep when you have an opportunity. Busy work schedules or weekend activities often make it difficult to get as much sleep as we'd like each night. Try to take a 30-minute nap during the day before 4 p.m.
- But if you sleep more than thirty minutes during the day you won't sleep later.

Presenter: Thank you, Dr Monday, for being with us.

Dr Monday: Thank you. And happy sleeping.

7. Listen to the text and fill in the missing words. These words can help you: sugar, group, healthy, protein, dairy.

MyPlate illustrates the five food groups: Grains, Vegetables, Fruits, Dairy and Protein Foods. They are the building blocks for a healthy diet using a familiar image — a place setting for a meal. The bigger the portion of the plate, the more foods from that food group should be in people's diet.

MyPlate is divided into sections of approximately 30 % grains, 40 % vegetables, 10 % fruits and 20 % protein, accompanied by a smaller circle representing dairy, such as a glass of milk or a yogurt cup.

MyPlate is supplemented with additional recommendations, such as «Make half of your plate fruits and vegetables», «Switch to 1 % or skim milk», «Make at least half of your grains whole», and «Vary your protein food choices». The guidelines also recommend portion control while still enjoying food, as well as reductions in sodium and sugar intakes.

In unveiling MyPlate, First Lady Michelle Obama said, «Parents don't have the time to measure out exactly three ounces of chicken or to look up how much rice or broccoli is in a serving. But we do have time to take a look at our kids' plates. And as long as they're eating proper portions, as long as half of their meal is fruits and vegetables alongside their lean proteins, whole grains and low-fat dairy, then we're good. It's as simple as that». Before you eat, think about what goes on your plate, in your cup, in your bowl.

15. Listen to a Fashion Expert about Body Image. Read the sentences and mark them T (true) or F (false).

We live in the world full of mass media resources. They influence us greatly starting from products which we buy in a mall and finishing with the latest perfumes used these days. Advertising in magazines, on the radio, TV, and billboards affects our healthy choices.

The best ad campaigns «stick», or are memorable (often in annoying ways). For example, L'Oreal's «because I'm worth it», or Nike's «Just Do It» are short and easy to remember. Examples of slogans encouraging unhealthy food habits include: «I'm lovin' it» by McDonald's and «Taste The Rainbow» by Skittles.

Even though these magazine images try to tell people what the ideal weight or body type is, each of them is still growing and changing.

Some bodies grow rounder before growing taller; some grow taller. In fact, people can't do anything to change the weight they will be. In the same way, they can't change the shape their bodies will become. Some will be broader, rounder, slimmer, taller, fuller, or thinner.

The best body size and shape for each of them is programmed in their genes.

It's common knowledge that magazines, TV, and billboard images create a false idea of what we should look like, and this false advertising can make people feel bad if they don't look like that.

What people do makes their bodies as fit as possible by eating healthy foods and exercising.

3. Listen to the texts and put the number of the texts in the pictures. Say which of the hobbies in the pictures you have tried/you would like to try and why. Several pictures can be suitable for each text.

Hobbies

1. In her free time my Mum enjoys embroidering, sewing, travelling and shopping. It can be quite tiring but it's worth it. It's her favourite pastime!

2. My hobby is gardening. Some people say that gardening is boring, but I have a stressful job, so in my spare time I like to do something relaxing.

3. I love mountain climbing. It's so exciting. My friends think I must be crazy. Actually though, it's not as dangerous as it looks. You just need the right training.

4. Listen and choose the best heading.

Eurovision is actually the name given to a TV network run by Italian San Remo Song Festival.

The first Eurovision viewers eagerly watched the Song Contest on 4 million televisions in Germany, Belgium, France, the United Kingdom, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

It is one of the longest-running television programmes in the world. The competition is broadcast not only throughout Europe, but also in Australia, Canada, Egypt, Hong Kong, India, Jordan, Korea, New Zealand and the United States of America, but these countries don't participate in this competition.

During the Eurovision Song Contest, millions of Europeans pick up their phones to call up or send SMS voting for their favourite songs!

- Johnny Logan won the Eurovision Song Contest three times.
- Poland made its most impressive debut in 1994.
- Norway could be found at the bottom of the list as many as nine times!
- Ireland has won 7 times, Luxembourg, France and the United Kingdom have won 5 times. Sweden and the Netherlands have won 4 times.
- In 2001, there was the largest audience that ever attended the Eurovision Song Contest. Almost 38 000 people gathered at Copenhagen's Parken Stadium.
- Only three women have conducted the orchestra at the Eurovision Song Contest.
- Most winning songs were performed in English.
- Six different systems were used over the past decades to pick the winner of the Eurovision Song Contest.
- ABBA is the most successful Eurovision Song Contest winner. The Swedish pop band won the contest in 1974.
- The Ukrainian singer Ruslana won the Song Contest in 2004. In 2007 and 2008 the Ukrainians were the second.

The contest has been broadcast every year, since 1956, and is one of the longest-running television programmes in the world. It is also one of the most watched non-sporting events in the world, with audience figures having been quoted in recent years as anything between 100 million and 600 million internationally. Eurovision has also been broadcast outside Europe to several countries that do not compete, such as the USA and China. An exception was made in 2015, when Australia was allowed to compete as a guest entrant as part of the celebration of the 60th anniversary of the event. In November 2015, the EBU announced that Australia would return in 2016. Since 2000, the contest has also been broadcast over the Internet, via the Eurovision website.

Måns Zelmerlöw of Sweden won the 2015 contest in Vienna, Austria, with the song «Heroes». The highest-scoring winner is Alexander Rybak who won the 2009 contest with a record-breaking 387 points.

After one year's absence from Eurovision, Ukraine is back this year! We have participated in Eurovision 12 times since our debut in 2003, and with great success.

Without any doubt Eurovision was, is and will be a great television tradition which brings Europe together.

«A bad day in the life of Ronan Keating»

This week singer Ronan Keating from the group «Boyzone» talks about a terrible experience that he just can't forget.

«Two years ago, we were playing a concert in London. There we decided to do one of our songs — «Believe in Me» without instruments.

But when I tried to sing I couldn't remember any of the words. I kept talking to the fans while shouting to the rest of the band, «I can't remember the words!» I was so upset that we all went up and walked off the stage. I'll never forget it. But I don't think the fans realized. They thought it was part of the show. We came back after a few minutes and sang a different song. I remembered the words this time! I still feel a bit nervous even now when I sing «Believe in Me».

4. Listen to the interview with Headmaster Michael Mavor. Say what new information you have got about schools in Great Britain.

Kathy: The public school is one of the great British institutions. Rugby School is one of the best known in Warwickshire. Rugby School was founded in 1567. What school is it?

Headmaster Michael Mavor: We call it an independent school now because it isn't public at all; it's actually private. It's a fee-paying school, and it provides all facilities for both boys and girls with a good education.

Kathy: At what age do the pupils start here?

Headmaster Michael Mavor: Here at eleven. But only two small classes for day pupils at eleven and twelve. But the main classes start at thirteen.

Kathy: And where do the pupils come from?

Headmaster Michael Mavor: From all over Britain, and certainly from other countries, about twelve per cent are foreigners. Nowadays, parents have changed their views about the boarding school. They like visiting their children and watching them playing games and listen to their playing in the school orchestra.

Kathy: And what is special about Rugby School?

Headmaster Michael Mavor: One of the most interesting things, I think, is the mixture of old and new. If you walk around Rugby School and look at the buildings, you'll get a feeling of being here. It's a school with strong traditions, but at the same time it's a school of new technologies.

6. Listen to the second part of the interview with two pupils of Rugby School and choose the correct answer.

Kathy: What do you especially like in Rugby School?

Trinity: I like it that we live with other students for five years, and we make really good friends with them. And after finishing school we can go to university together.

Kathy: So how many days a week do you have classes?

Trinity: Six days. We have a full day on Monday; half day on Tuesday, full day on Wednesday, half day on Thursday, full day on Friday, and half day on Saturday. And Sunday is the day off.

Mandy: The days are very long and we have lessons six days a week and a huge amount of work. But all in all, I really enjoy this life.

Kathy: And where do you usually sleep and keep your things?

Trinity: There are dormitories. We have eight pupils sleeping in each one. There is also one wardrobe for all of us and a drawer for each student to keep clothes in. We have to be here about 9:45 and at 10:00 a senior boy comes up and turns off the lights.

Kathy: And where do you usually do your homework?

Mandy: There is a language lab, where we can watch videos in different languages. We can use computers for writing our essays. And we can learn different languages: Russian, German and Latin.

9. Listen to the description of two teachers. Match their descriptions to the pictures.

Matilda's teachers

The village school for younger children was a brick building called Crunchem Hall Primary School. The headteacher, the boss, of this establishment, was a formidable middle-aged lady whose name was Miss Trunchbull.

Matilda was put in a class of this village school. Their teacher was called Miss Honey. She had a lovely pale oval face with blue eyes and her hair was light brown. Her body was slim and fragile, like a porcelain figure.

Miss Honey was a quiet person who had never raised her voice and was seldom seen to smile. She seemed to understand the confusion and fear of young children. Children could see warmth on Miss Honey's face when she spoke to a confused and homesick newcomer to the class. Everyone loved her.

Miss Trunchbull, the Headmistress, was something else altogether. She was a gigantic woman; a fierce monster who frightened the pupils and teachers. When she came up close you could almost feel the dangerous heat radiating from her.

When she was marching along a corridor and a group of children happened to be on her path, she moved through them like a tank. If you ever met her, you had to behave as if you had met a rhinoceros in the bush — climbed up the nearest tree and stayed there until it had gone away. She was a famous athlete some years ago, and even now she had strong muscles. Her face was not beautiful. She was an arrogant person. And as for her clothes... She always had a brown, long cotton shirt with a wide leather belt on. On her feet she wore green stockings put into the thick strong leather shoes.

She hardly spoke in a normal voice. She either barked or shouted.

6. Listen to the interview and mark the sentences T (true) or F (false). Correct the false sentences.

1. What do you think of the system of education in the UK?
— The system of education in the UK is considered to be one of the best in the world. We can choose any school. It depends upon the education we want to get.

2. What exams do the pupils have to take?
— It depends upon the type of the school they study at. The General Certificate of Secondary Education (GCSE) is an official exam after which a pupil can leave school or A levels exams after which a pupil can try to get into University. Then there are AS levels in secondary schools. It is an exam between GCSE and A levels. We have also several Assessment Tests. These are government-assigned tests and are taken by pupils of different ages.

3. Do you have school uniforms?
— Oh, yes. The pupils of most secondary schools wear a full uniform: shirts, trousers or skirts, school blazers or sweaters. But the pupils of primary schools usually wear school sweatshirts with the names and symbols of their schools on, though a school uniform is no longer compulsory in some British schools.
I don't like wearing a school uniform but I have to wear it.

4. Are you punished at schools?
— For our misbehaviour we can be removed from the classroom for a while, in some cases even from school, kept in class during break time or in school after the school day, not allowed to join in school activities and some more.

5. And what about rewards?
— Oh, trips to places of interest, points, unmanaged free time, choosing activities, achievement certificates and others.

6. Are there any problems in your schools today?
— To my mind, the biggest problem in our schools, in mine, too, is bullying. There are pupils in our schools that make the lives of other pupils difficult by making fun of them, shouting cruel things at them in order to make them angry or upset, hurting them.

5. Listen to the text and answer the questions.

The system of education in Ukraine is considered to be one of the best in the world. Preschool education is not compulsory and you have to pay fees for it. Most parents take their children to nursery schools or kindergartens at the age of 3 or to private schools even at the age of 1 and a half, where children eat, sleep and play up to the age of 4 or 5 and then they are taught arithmetic, reading, writing, and foreign languages. In some schools they are taught earlier.

Compulsory secondary education begins at the age of 6 and is free in state schools and fee-paying in private ones. Children start learning foreign languages from the 1st form in all schools.

There are different types of schools in Ukraine: gymnasiums, lyceums, colleges, language schools, secondary schools, schools with technical, mathematical, computer, law, sport, art and pedagogical slant. There are also private gymnasiums, colleges, lyceums and international schools.

In secondary schools there are obligatory subjects and optional courses pupils of senior forms can take in addition to the required subjects.

After the 9th form the pupils can enter vocational (training) schools. After getting secondary education pupils can enter technical schools and colleges of the 1st and 2nd Level of Accreditation that train young specialists in different trades or higher educational establishments: universities, institutes, academies or conservatoires.

10. Listen to the dialogue, act it out. Use the key phrases to describe your school life.

S1: Hello, Misha! Thank you for your agreeing to help me with my project as I am writing an article about learning of foreign languages in Ukraine.

S2: You are welcome! I study at language school 112 named after Taras Shevchenko. Unlike other schools, it is a full-time school so pupils stay at school from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. English, French, German and Spanish are learned at our school. The headmistress of our school is Larysa Matskevych, the most democratic headmistress in Kyiv. So every year we elect the President of our school and form the Cabinet of Ministers who are in charge of certain departments. It's so interesting!

S1: At what age do the pupils start learning languages?
S2: At the age of 6. Most pupils start learning languages before they go to school.

S1: Do you find it difficult to learn three languages simultaneously?

S2: Yes, I do, but it's great! What is more, our lessons are always creative. I am very grateful to my English teacher, Volodymyr Borymskyi, who made me get interested in foreign languages. His work deserves admiration.

S1: What subjects does your school curriculum include?

S2: Mathematics, Biology, Chemistry, History, Physics, Physical Education, Computer Studies and others. We are also offered optional courses such as Business English and English for lawyers and some more.

S1: What about out-of-class activities?

S2: Oh, all kinds of out-of-class activities are part of our school life. We don't have time to be bored. We have lots of opportunities for doing sport, attending different clubs (for example, Book Club, Maths Club, Tennis Club) and singing in a choir. Our school has a good library and we can use any materials we need when we are doing our homework or different projects.

13. Listen to the descriptions of these libraries, name them and complete the table.

1. This library is the national library of the United Kingdom. It is based in London and is one of the world's most significant research libraries, holding over 150 million items in all known languages and formats: books, journals, newspapers, magazines, sound and music recordings, maps, stamps, drawings and much more, making it the largest collection in the world.

2. This library is the nation's oldest federal cultural institution and serves as the research arm of Congress. It is also the largest library in the world with millions of books, recordings, photographs, maps and manuscripts in its collections. Its collection was growing at a rate of about two million items per year; it reached more than 155 million items in 2012. The Library's mission is to make its resources available and useful to Congress and the American people and to preserve a universal collection of knowledge for future generations.

3. This library was compiled by Sir Robert Bruce Cotton. It contains collections of books, manuscripts, coins, medallions and artifacts. Its collection is the single greatest known resource of literature in Old English and Middle English, such works as «Beowulf», the poem «Pearl» and the Lindisfarne Gospels. But nowadays this library is part of the British Library. Today, the Cotton collection at the British Library comprises more than 1,400 manuscripts and over 1,500 charters, rolls and seals. These items range in date from approximately the 4th century to the 1600s, and have their origin in western Europe and beyond.

4. This library is the largest library in the country. It was established in 1918 as the main scientific information centre. Its collection contains more than 15 million items. This unique collection includes books, magazines, serials, maps, manuscripts, rare printed books and incunabula, newspapers and documents of untraditional materials. The library has the most complete collection of Slavic writing, archives of outstanding world and Ukrainian scientists and the National Academy of Sciences.

5. This library consists of 4 research centres and 85 branch libraries in Manhattan, Slaten Island and the Bronx. It is the largest research library with a circulating system in the world. Its collection is more than 52 million items and serves millions of users. The Library holds items, from books, e-books, and DVDs to renowned research collections used by scholars from around the world. NYPL's historical collections hold such treasures as Columbus's 1493 letter announcing his discovery of the New World, George Washington's original Farewell Address, and John Coltrane's handwritten score of «Lover Man».
